Dangerous patterns in sky

Vapor trails from big jets are nothing new in Southeast Missouri skies. Deeper in the Bootheel, near Portageville or Hayti, it's a common thing to see several of the craft from the Air Force base at Blytheville, Ark., flying over during a day's time. Saturday proved to be just a little more than expected in those clear Bootheel skies as two jets, heading north from the general area of the air base, and one flying south toward that same general area (far left), played a dodging game at high altitude. The first maneuvers occured when the two outside planes evidently spotted each other on radar and the one traveling north flew to the right to avoid close contact. After several miles, that plane swung north again but repeated the right hand swing and then north again to add distance for the fly- by of the two aircraft. Then it looks as though a second north bound plane appeared in a similar flight path as the first and, judging from the flat "S" shape of its contrail, it took a similar course correction to also widen its fly- by path with the southbound aircraft. The action was photographed from I- 55 south of Portageville by Daily Standard Wire and Photo Editor Tim Ludwig.

143 American POWs return home today

CLARK AIR BASE, Philippines (AP) — A total of 143 prisoners of war came back today under the Stars and Stripes, the flag some had not seen for eight years.

Most of the men flown to this base after release from Communist captivity in North and South Vietnam were reported in good physical condition as they checked into a U.S. hospital.

"We are honored at the opportunity to serve our country under difficult circumstances," said the first prisoner to step out of the first returning hospital plane, Navy Capt. Jeremiah A. Denton Jr. of Virginia Beach, Va. "God bless America."

More than 60 doctors on duty at the base hospital began examining the freed prisoners.

The first to arrive were 116 from North Vietnamese prisons, ferried on the 2½-hour flight from Hanoi by three U.S. Air Force Starlifter hospital planes.

"No emergency medical treatment was required and did not seem necessary," a spokesman said later. "On the most part the men were ebullient."

A second contingent of 26 men headed here from South Vietnam. They were released north of Saigon following a daylong dispute that delayed their departure. A 27th prisoner released with them remained behind at a Saigon hospital.

Spokesmen at Clark said large numbers of the returned prisoners requested a regular American dinner instead of the bland diets doctors had planned to nurse their digestive systems. And most got it.

The prisoners in South Vietnam — 19 servicemen and 8 civilians — were turned over at Loc Ninh 75 miles north of Saigon and flown to Saigon in U.S. helicopters for transfer to hospital planes and the 2-hour and 15-minute flight to Clark Air Base.

The releases at Hanoi and Loc Ninh left 341 American prisoners in North Vietnamese hands, 72 in South Vietnam and 7 in Laos, according to Hanoi's count supplied to the United States. The remainder are to be released at two-week intervals in groups about the same size as today's.

The first group of released prisoners stepped out into freedom with sharp salutes, cautious smiles and their heads held high — their emotions thinly concealed behind the formality of the moment.

In gray jackets and dark gray trousers provided by their North Vietnamese captors, the men released from the "Hanoi Hilton" made their first contact with home as emotionally charged crowds chanted, "Welcome home. We love you."

The applause and cheers from the excited crowd of several thousand military personnel, dependents and newsmen were steady as the POWs, some of them limping, walked off the hospital planes at this base, their first stop on their 12,000-mile trip home.

One man produced a handkerchief-sized blue-lettered sign and held it up so the crowd and newsmen could see it, "God bless America and Nixon."

A tough-looking Marine major wiped his eyes. A two-star Air Force general waved both his arms high, the fingers on both hands forming the V-sign.

Out of the glare of the welcoming brass and the television cameras, the POWs seemed like an excited group of school boys — kids on their way to a high school football game, hanging out of the bus windows, waving and shouting at exuberant people who lined the one-mile drive from the flight line to the 250-bed base hospital.

Reporters were not allowed to interview the men, but one newsman shouted, "How does it feel to be back?"

"Great," yelled back a prematurely gray-haired man with a bright smile of yellowed teeth. "Wonderful," beamed another hanging out of the next window.

Lt. Cmdr. Everett Alvarez, held nearly nine years, appeared trim and fit.

In Bootheel accidents

1 killed, 9 injured

One person was killed and nine were injured in area traffic accidents over the weekend, according to the highway patrol.

Artie Ivan Hillis, 22, of Williamsville was killed at 9:45 p.m. Saturday on Route A in downtown Williamsville when his car, traveling at a high rate of speed, ran off the right side of the road and struck a tree.

He was dead on arrival at Doctors Hospital in Poplar Bluff. His body was taken to Gish- Bowles Funeral Home in Piedmont.

A one- car accident at 10:30 p.m. Saturday at St. Jude Industrial Park on Noranda Road one and one-half miles east of Marston resulted in injuries to James Robert Kendrick, 27, of Portageville. He was taken to Missouri Delta Community Hospital in Sikeston with a possible broken arm.

The accident occurred when Kendrick's car skidded through an intersection, ran off the road and struck an embankment.

Troy Eugene Sowell, 27, of Dexter received head cuts in an accident at 6:45 p.m. Saturday on Route V nine miles north of Cape Girardeau when his car ran off the road on a curve and struck an embankment. His car had been traveling at a high rate of speed, the patrol said.

Dora Ethel Johnson, 36, of Sikeston received minor head cuts in an accident at 7:20 p.m. Saturday on Route Y two miles west of Sikeston when her car, traveling at a high rate of speed, ran off the road into a yard, struck a pole, a tree and a parked car.

She received minor head and leg cuts and was treated and released from Missouri Delta Community Hospital in Sikeston.

Four persons were injured in an accident at 12:45 a.m. Sunday on a gravel road six miles west of Malden when a car driven by David Eugene Allen, 29, of Malden ran off the road at a high rate of speed, struck a small ditch embankment, overturned three times and came to rest on its wheels.

Allen received a possible dislocated left shoulder and scratches and bruises; Daphna Allen, 45, of Malden suffered a broken right leg and bruises and scratches; Sally Sullivan, 27, of Malden sustained bruises and scratches; and Jerry Leon Sullivan, 30, of Malden received bruises and scratches. All were taken to Dunklin County Memorial Hospital in Kennett.

William Colwell Spencer, 68, of Gridley, Ill., and his wife, Pearl Loretta Spencer, 66, of Gridley, received minor injuries in a traffic accident at 2:10 p.m. Sunday two miles east of Wyatt on Highway 60.

Spencer received bruises and his wife suffered bruises and a right shoulder injury. They were taken to Missouri Delta Community Hospital in Sikeston.

The accident occurred when Spencer started to pass another vehicle, pulled back because of close oncoming traffic, ran off the road and overturned.

Supreme Court orders new trial in Cape case

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — A new trial was ordered by the Missouri Supreme Court today for a Cape Girardeau family who sought $37,500 in damages from Townes cadillac-Oldsmobile dealer in Cape Girardeau.

Billy Gene and Carolyn Wills charged that a Townes car, driven by salesman Rober McClary, struck a bicycle ridden by their son, Danny Gene Wills, now 11, on July 23, 1969.

Danny was seriously injured and medical expenses totaled $10,000, the Wills' petition said.

The salesman had returned from a vacation at Lake Taneycomo, driving a Townes Cadillac-Oldsmobille car. When the accident occurred, he was driving to a funeral home because a relative had died. The car company said McClary was not engaging in any business when the accident occurred, although McClary did perform his salesman's duties at all hours.

The circuit court ruled in favor of the car dealer.

The Supreme Court opinion said a general manager for the company had testified in a proceeding before the circuit court trial that McClary was acting in the employment of the Townes company.

"The car itself was for sale and in the control of a salesman who had the duty

Poyner jailed on assault charges

Jerry Lynn Poyner, 1332 W. Murray Lane, was in city jail this morning charged with assault and battery, destruction of private property, and assault with a deadly weapon.

He was arrested at 2:35 a.m. after he allegedly attacked a woman and assaulted Charles Meyer, 914 Sikes, with a broken cue stick. Meyer was treated at Missouri Delta Community Hospital for cuts and bruises.

Meyer stopped a policeman near the International Shoe Co. factory and told him that Poyner had assaulted him.

Police went to 232 S. Main St. where the alleged assault took place. Upon arrival, police heard a

Dexter to vote on abolishing marshal post

DEXTER-- Voters will have an opportunity to abolish the elective office of city marshal on April 3, but the office would not be officially abolished until May 6, 1974, when the present marshal's term expires.

The plan, adopted by the City Council Monday night, calls for the issue to be on a special ballot at the regular city election on April 3.

Most Dexter councilmen and Mayor Willis Conner have thought for many months that the head of the police department should be an appointive office. The office is presently held by Clay Baker.

Conner pointed out to the council that nearly all cities the size of Dexter or larger have appointive chiefs of police. Under the usual procedure, he pointed out, the City Council and the mayor appoint the chief of police, who, in turn, recommends men to be hired as policemen.

Under the present plan in Dexter, the city marshal gains his office by vote of the people, and the city government cannot exercise any measure of control over his duties. However, the council does hire the other policemen and has control over activities.

This sort of system results in "divided control" and "divided responsibility," it was pointed out.

Norton accusers must 'be specific'

NEW MADRID — Circuit Court Judge William Ragland Friday issued a preliminary writ of mandamus to four people bringing charges against Harold Norton, education director of the Delta Area Head Start program.

The writ orders the four to appear in court on Feb. 27 with the answers to 10 questions asked by the judge, or to show cause why they should not answer the questions.

Ragland said he will decide at that time whether to dismiss or proceed with the case.

The writ was issued to C. B. Ratchford, president of University of Missouri; R. H. Bezoni, university comptroller; Carl N. Scheneman, vice president of the university extension service; and Glenn Patton of Charleston, area extension director and acting director of the Delta Head Start program.

The university extension division recommended Norton's removal. The recommendation was accepted Jan. 29 by the Head Start policy committee.

Patton in recommending the dismissal, told the committee that Norton had failed to follow the directives of the Head Start director.

The court hearing on his removal, originally set for Wednesday, has been postponed, and the four men are ordered to present specific charges against Norton. The charges are to be in writing and delivered to Norton at least 15 days before the rescheduled date of the hearing.

The 10 questions the judge presented in the writ require:

The four to state specifically what actions Norton performed or failed to perform in violation of directives of the Head Start director and area extension director.

State specifically what directives Norton failed to follow.

Give the dates when counseling sessions in this regard were held and names of persons present.

State in detail what actions Norton performed that resulted in confusion and concern among Head Start staff members and parents of children in the Head Start program in regard to the direction and administration of the program.

State in detail when and where Norton performed the actions.

Give in detail the places where alleged confusion and concern among Head Start staff and parents resulted from Norton's actions regarding the direction and administration and future of the program.

Name the persons among the staff and parents who became confused or concerned as a result of Norton's actions.

Tell what the concern and confusion were among these people concering the direction of the program; tell what confusion and concern was about the administration of the program; tell what confusion and concern was created in regard to the future of the program.

Inquest canceled

The inquest scheduled for 10:30 a.m. today into the shooting death last Wednesday of Miss Carol Alvarez, a 24- year- old Sikeston resident, has been canceled, it was announced today by Gene Nunnelee, Scott County coroner.

Results of residual tests taken on both the young woman and her companion, Jimmy Junior Kaiser of Sikeston, will not be available until a later date.

Miss Alvarez died from a bullet wound in the head. Kaiser, who was with her at the time, told police she shot herself during an argument with him.

Kaiser has been charged with murder in connection with her death.

$46 stolen

A thief took $46 Saturday night from a cash register at Nelson's Texaco Station 114 S. Main St., according to police.

The money was reportedly taken between 6 and 7 p.m.

School installs data system

PORTAGEVILLE — The Portageville unit of New Madrid County R-1 enlarged school district Follow Through Program has installed a modern system of data communications to provide weekly individualized feedback of academic pupil progress to teachers.

Dr. Don Bushell Jr. of the Department of Human Growth and Development at University of Kansas in Lawrence, Kan., is the program's sponsor. Dr. Bushell views the data communications system as a useful tool for providing the teacher with quick, pertinent information related to each child's actual academic progress.

The system is built around an optical mark reading machine manufactured and distributed by Optical Scanning Corporation. The Opscan device electronically reads weekly individual progress reports.

The reports consist of actual pages completed by the children in each subject area. The forms are collected weekly from the classroom teachers by two evaluation clerks and are checked for completeness. The clerks transpose pupil placement from the teacher forms to Opscan data forms.

When the forms are complete, the machine "reads" each form and transmits its information by telephone to the computation center at University of Kansas.

A series of computers receive the information from each classroom and prepare an individual report for each team at the Portageville school. The complete report with its analysis and recommendations is then teletransmitted from the computation center to a waiting teletype machine at the Portageville school. The evaluation clerks deliver the reports as the teams begin their daily staff planning sessions.

These Opscan reports are helpful to teachers in analyzing how current progress compares with the progress of the previous year; how their classes compare with other classes at the same grade level in the same school; and how the data compares with classes at that grade level throughout the country.

When progress lags for a few children at a specific point in the curriculum, teachers need immediate practical suggestions for possible alternatives or approaches. When it becomes clear that a specific change in the daily schedule could improve the operation of the class, the teaching teams can obtain that information immediately.

The Portageville Follow Through Program is in its fifth year of operation. The program began in 1968 with a total of two classrooms and 47 children and expanded to the current 14 classrooms, involving a total of 395 children. The program encompasses kindergarten through third grade.

Portageville Follow Through began the 1972-73 school year implementing the last phase of the program, where it maximized local control and independence. The program opened the term with a one-week workshop where intensive training of classroom personnel was carried on.

Blaine E. Martin, director of Portageville Follow Through, and Mrs. Libby Myracle, supervisor, invite interested people to view the feedback system in operation. Contact the Portageville Follow Through Office, 711 King Ave. P. O. Box 280, for information or date when the communication system is transmitting.

IRON DUKE
IN THE RIGHT SPOT

"It was somewhat tactless," suggested Lord Leatherland in the House of Lords the other day, that just when Britain is about to enter the European Common Market the Bank of England has issued a five-pound note printed with a portrait of the Duke of Wellington and a picture of British gunners "blowing the French army to blazes" at the Battle of Waterloo in 1815.

Not so, countered Lord Jellicoe on behalf of the government. It was decided to portray an "illustrious British personage" on the new notes and the government was sticking by its figurative guns.

It should, but not just because Wellington was an illustrious Briton.

While a reminder of Napoleon's crushing defeat might possibly offend the sensibilities of nostalgic Frenchmen, nothing could be more appropriate in connection with the Common Market than a tribute to the Iron Duke.

Wellington's victory, and that of Britain's allies, not only smashed Napoleon's dream of empire and freed the continent from the yoke of his dictatorship but showed that Europe could never be united through the domination of one man or one nation.

At long last, Europeans seem to have learned the lessons of the Napoleonic wars and of both World Wars, and the price of nationalistic rivalries. Not through force but only through voluntary, peaceful, cooperation can the true dream of a united Europe be realized.

Britain, too, has learned that she can no longer stand apart from the continent, juggling delicate power balances, but must join it or perish.

The Duke would have approved.

DO AWAY WITH MOTHERHOOD?

Twenty years from now, mothers will be a mere specialty group in the United States, says Jeanne Binstock, a sociologist at the University of Massachusetts.

This state of affairs will not result from the women's liberation movement but from economic factors and technological change, she predicts in an article in, appropriately, The Futurist magazine.

Modern medicine's success in reducing mortality has resulted in an overproduction of people, she explains. Women's lib movements are really a consequence of technological change. They have appeared at the historical moment when a sharp reduction in the occupational group known as mothers is mandatory.

"We are forced to face the fact that if we do not take from women their role of mother and replace it with something else, we will be throttled by the overproduction of babies. We thus face the need to demand that the ancient and honorable occupation of motherhood fall into disrepute, and that women commit themselves to other occupations.

"Women must be 'liberated' to enjoy the fruits of other occupations, whether they want to be or not." (Emphasis hers.)

As a sidelight to this prediction, it is interesting to note that Ralph Nader, whose interests seem to have no limit, predicts that by 1976, the nation's 200th anniversary, "Women will no longer be wearing cosmetics. WE" have ended the high priority we put on that kind of activity."

Don't say you weren't warned, ladies. And gentlemen.

NEW YORK (AP) The winter lull is a good time for self- examination, a good time to check up on whether you are forging ahead or falling behind in your career.

The really ambitious man does this constantly, but no matter how careless or slipshod the life you lead, you need to take a critical look at your life plan at least twice a year — either before or after you see your dentist.

Are you progressing or retrogressing? Here is a simple home test that will give you the answer and save you the trouble and expense of going to a psychiatrist or career counsellor.

You're still climbing the wave of achievement if:

You're such a hero to your valet that he asks you to sign a new page in his autograph album every morning.

When you go away on a trip, your wife still puts in your socks and pajamas little endearing notes such as, "I will always be your girl," and "sleep well tonight, lover boy."

At the other end of the journey, when your mistress unpacks your bag and finds the notes, she gets jealous.

Your name at the head of the list of contributors guarantees the success of any charity drive.

The golf pro at your country club seeks your advice when he finds that his putting games is a bit off.

Yes, sir, the world is your oyster. Keep going the way you are. But how do you tell if you're slipping? You might consider making major changes in your modus vivendi if:

You don't even know what modus vivendi means.

Nobody else in your class shows up the evening you are scheduled to make your first speech in your Dale Carnegie course.

Every morning you have to borrow money from your fellow office worker so you can rush to the bank and make a deposit to cover the check you wrote the day before.

When you go into your favorite bar, the bartender you are too cheap to tip turns to another customer and says in a loud stage whisper, "Look who's here — Mr. Bad News himself."

After reading this column, you sit and brood about who could possibly have told me about you.

RELIEF NEEDED NOW

The railroads have asked for an immediate 15 per cent rate increase. Their petition, failed with the Interstate Commerce Commission, says they "... are in desperate need of additional revenues to cope with steeply rising cost levels, impaired earnings and inadequate capital and maintenance programs." Railroad after railroad reports approaching financial crisis.

Dr. Burton N. Behling, Association of American Railroads vice president of economics and finance, has predicted that unless current difficulties are resolved, "time is fast running out on prospects for preserving a viable railroad system able to service the nation's future commerce." In the meantime, as the Report of America's Sound Transportation Review Organization has pointed out, "The technology for reaching a new level of railroad service is available. What is required is the money to bring into being those facilities that will enable the railroads to offer regularity of service." ASTRO puts the capital improvement needs of the rail industry, between now and 1980, at more than $36 billion.

Either these billions will be forthcoming from the voluntary investment of private citizens in support of an industry that is permitted by regulatory authority to earn a fair return, or the taxpayers will assume the burden as part of the astronomical cost of preserving rail service under some form of nationalization -- government ownership. If that should happen, rail rate increases will be imposed just as they are imposed by the Post Office and such agencies as The Tennessee Valley Authority. And the Congressmen who now profess "outrage" at the rail request for tariffs that may spell a life or death difference to the railroads will fall silent.

As heavy taxpayers and providers of a vital transport service, the railroads, under private ownership, should be encouraged now, not tomorrow when it is too late, to get on with the task of meeting the expanding transport needs of a growing nation.

MANAGED INCOME

The U. S. Chamber of Commerce has completed a new study of 1,115 firms which traces the growth of fringe benefits. The findings are startling. This year, these benefits will cost employers a staggering $125 billion, an average of more than $40 per week per employee. And the amount employers pay for extra benefits is continuing upward almost twice as fast as wages and salaries.

On the average, for every $4 received by a worker in cash, his employer shells out an average of $1 for benefits. Since 1959, these benefits have soared into the stratosphere. Social security has increased 200 per cent, insurance 128 per cent, workmen's compensation 93 per cent, profit- sharing payments 87 per cent, paid holidays 76 per cent and so on. The truth is that taxation and fringe benefits, when combined with inflation, are removing the discretionary spending ability of most U. S. citizens. Their income is "managed" by government and other agencies beyond their control.

HOW FAR?

One of the most disturbing questions facing a large corporation today is, "How far can or should a company go in responding to new social problems?" In a special issue of a company publication, a large food processing concern reviews what it is doing and offers suggestions that may provide guidelines for the policies and programs of other companies.

Entitled "Commitment", the magazine starts off by making the irrefutable point that "profits still count." When there is no profit, there is no business. But, beyond the necessity of profits, the company's publication stresses the equally unavoidable necessity of company concern in other matters involving consumer protection, education, job training, poverty, malnutrition, race and the environment - in short, everything that today has become so critical to the goal of achieving a better American tomorrow. In answering the question of "how far?" it can go in the area of social responsibility, this particular expertise or particular concern. In this way, we will not dissipate our energy and resources in fields where others are better equipped to make a contribution." For example, it, like other companies in the food field as well as government agencies, has tackled the problem of malnutrition. It feels it has found the answer -- a food packed with protein and vitamins nutritious enough to grace the tables of the rich, yet producible for mere pennies from readily available raw materials.

The good works of this food company and other social undertakings of business do not spring solely from altruism. As a company official observes, "It is self-evident that a society in turmoil cannot provide a profitable marketplace for the purveyors of any goods or services." The very fact that many businesses are approaching social problems in a similar manner -- from the standpoint of practical economics -- provides the best evidence that substantial progress will be made.

The Freedom To Be Irresponsible; Freedom to Act Like A Child

Freedom is becoming a much abused word, as well as a misunderstood word. It has been grabbed as the ultimate by irresponsible and undisciplined persons to cover their irregular habits and as a license to do as they please.

Neither freedom nor liberty carry a license to violate laws, to go unwashed, to be a phoney, to trample the rights of others. Those exercising these privileges may be charitably classified as undisciplined persons.

Undisciplined persons are always getting into trouble because they do as they please, without regard to the rights of others or serious consequences. Their habits are irregular even to sleeping, eating and working. The undisciplined son may decide he wants a bath but not a haircut when the family is at the dinner table. Another type of undisciplined person goes to a bar and sits there telling stories until it closes, while his family wonders what happened to him.

Undisciplined people are unable to curb their appetites so they become the chain smokers, the sleeping pill users and the drug addicts. The child who refuses to conform to convention at home will not improve when he goes to school.

The "black sheep" that the undisciplined person becomes is the person who fails to find satisfaction in work, in home life, and who is unable to get along in society in general. He is frustrated and resents efforts to help him and soon sours on humanity in general because they are all against him. He is in the unenviable position of the soldier, who was the only one in his company out of step. They become the "all out of step but Jim's of the world.

Unfortunately most of these out- of-step people think they are free, and in this new found freedom which they think they have discovered, they flaunt conventional behavior.

If we were to accept their thinking then we, too, would want this freedom, because it would make for a happy life. But in fact none of them are free, and none of this tripe have liberty. They are bound by hidden chains that cramp their every movement and in their struggles they have alienated those who would be friends and those who would have been stepping stones to happiness and success.

The freedom to be undisciplined by actual example and not philosphy, leads to frustration, bitterness and oblivion.

Sometimes I feel I'd like to object to a TV commercial. How can I find out what agency prepared the commercial?

You can write or telephone your objection to the television station and it will be forwarded to the agency. The same procedure is recommended for misleading advertising on radio, or in newspapers and magazines.

Isn't there a law that punishes businesses that advertise items at low prices and then try to sell consumers a more expensive model?

This is called "bait and switch" advertising which is considered a deceptive practice and should be reported to the Better Business Bureau or other consumer protection agencies in your area.

Does the purchase price of a mobile home include furnishings?

Yes, the basic home furnishings including carpeting, curtains and draperies, furniture, kitchen and heating appliances, freight charges, plus the cost of setting the home on the site are usually included in the purchase price.

Is it true that book clubs have been outlawed? If so, when did the law go into effect?

New regulations have been proposed by the Federal Trade Commission to regulate sales plans often used by book and record companies. The regulation does not outlaw this method of selling.

What kinds of products must be packaged in child resistant packages?

All packages for aspirin and all packages for products containing aspirin — powder preparations, suppositories, chewing gum, effervescent tables and cold pills - and like medications are included in the requirement.

DANGERS IN LEGALIZING MARIJUANA

The Consumers Union recently published a 623- page study on drugs, in which it calls for immediate repeal of all federal and state laws governing the growing, sale, possession and use of marijuana, on the grounds that is is basically harmless.

A great many experts would disagree. Professor William Paton of Oxford University found that frequent use of marijuana is physically dangerous. Harmful substances accumulate in the body, which may cause miscarriages and liver damage.

Dr. Harold Kolansky and Dr. William Moore, psychiatrists from Philadelphia, have found that psychological damage accompanies the physical harm. They believe that frequent use of marijuana may eventually produce brain damage.

Dr. Harvey Powelson, director of the University of California at Berkeley's student psychiatric clinic for five years, initially supported the legalization of marijuana. But in his observations of the young people who came to his clinic, he discovered that continual use of the drug for more than six months could lead to changes "similar to those seen in organic brain diseases-- islands of lucidity intermixed with areas of loss of function."

Dr. Hardin Jones, assistant director of the Donner Laboratory at the University of California at Berkeley, and Dr. Olay Braenden, director of the United Nations Narcotics Laboratory, have also pointed out the harmful effects of marijuana.

The Consumers Union study does not so much as menion any of these authorities. Before any steps are taken to legalize marijuana, the conclusions of these experts should be taken into full consideration, along with the experience of law enforcement officers that heroin addicts usually start on marijuana. White House Strategy:
Nixon- Shultz Team Decide No Intervention In Even Most Massive Strike Crises

By Victor Riesel

WASHINGTON— Legend has it that during a crippling 1969 waterfront strike, with much of the nation in an uproar, the ex- Marine officer, 52- year- old George Shultz, then Secretary of Labor, now Practically assistant president, ordered bananas in a New York restaurant. This spot was not far from the paralyzed wharfs.

Shultz, today's home- front Kissinger, thus proved that imported perishables were still available. Therefore, he said, it is easy to exaggerate the impact of a crippling strike. Later he did an analysis of three such longshoremen hangups--- and said there was no evidence that the economy was permanently injured, or profits or employment.

Secretary of the Treasury Shultz, who aside from the President truly controls the entire governmental- Cabinet infrastructure, believes in the free play of the free market.

That's why there was no White House intervention in the long 1969 dock strike. And this explains why the White House moved scarcely at all to stop the Penn- Central strike. Basically, President Nixon wants no confrontation with labor. Counselor Shultz always has said let them battle among themselves on the strike front--- a sort of home- front version of Mr. Nixon's Asian policy.

From the earliest days of the administration the President has been advised by Shultz to let management and labor settle things among themselves. If the Penn- Central walkout and the White House's refusal to intervene are precedents-- there's significance, indeed, in what happened behind the scenes.

The President approved Shultz's policy and the assistant president passed it on to the new Secretary of Labor, Peter Brennan, who spoke to the outgoing Assistant Secretary Bill Usery (scheduled to go over to the Mediation Services). Also informed were labor's friends, Sen. Pete Williams of New Jersey, head of the Labor Committee, and New York Sen. Jack Javits.

Thus the White House threw the ball to Congress though it was reported that Ford and Chrysler would have to shut down in a week, the railroad might never again function as a private company or a unit, and grain shippers were alarmed and fuel grew scarcer.

Though even Henry Ford II personally urged President Nixon to step into the crisis, the White House also dispatched word to Congress it wanted no end- the- strike legislation. President Nixon and Secretary Shultz respect Mr. Ford and other industrialists. But their private messages to the congressional leaders were--- do what you want.

"The ball is in Congress's court," one of Mr. Nixon's intimates told a caller some hours after the Penn- Central went silent as 26 unions respected the United Transportation (AFL— CIO— UTU) pickets. "They will have to decide on their own. We aren't taking the initiative on anything except the routine efforts of Bill Usery. We aren't asking for any money for the line. We don't want to get into another Lockheed loan vise. We won't force anything which costs money."

This was a snorting difference to one Penn- Central trustee's warning that failure to get a $600 million to $800 million federal loan would kill the line.

And from one source close to both the President and Pete Brennan came the following: "This is not a labor dispute. This railroad has been facing liquidation. This isn't a labor-management clash. This is an economic problem. The whole thing has been blown way out of proportion. The President doesn't want congressional action on this one on a straight- away strike basis. This must not be discussed as a labor battle.

"And that old 'Crippling Strikes' Emergency proposal won't be reconsidered."

This was said though Michigan Sen. Robert P. Griffin, assistant Republican leader, warned that not only the auto industry was threatened but that "steel" would be shut down, too, by a week's Penn- Central paralysis.

The significance in all this lies in the united Nixon- Shultz determination to refuse to intervene in even the most massive labor= management wars. And the coming two years will be studded with them-- in the nation's basic industries.

There will be other nationally traumatic rail crises before the year is over. If the Shultz policy prevails, the nation may be hit by the UTU's selective strike tactics invoked between May 18 and Aug. 2, 1971. At first the union crippled two railroads, then three more and three again and finally two. All very legal, according to the Supreme Court. By August the UTU had some 41 per cent of the nation's rail cargo snarled and stopped.

Shultz's philosophy is-- let the big corporations stand up and fight; let the unions know the companies will stand up. Let the message get to the eager- beaver rank and file. Let both sides know that the White House won't be anybody's business agent as it has been since Franklin Roosevelt. Let Congress do what it wishes. But the White House people won't run interference for anybody.

It could be a rough go. But that's what "Doc" Shultz is prescribing-- bananas with crises.

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Jack Anderson

JACK ANDERSON SAYS:
Documenting a Frame

WASHINGTON — Press spokesman Ron Ziegler has described as "wrong, wrong, wrong," our report that the White House has instructed the Justice Department to "nail" us.

We will be happy, if Ziegler is wrong, to accept President Nixon's apology for jailing Les Whitten. It remains a fact, meanwhile, that Whitten was arrested and his notes ripped out of his hand while he was covering a story for this column. We also have evidence that his arrest was a setup.

He was charged with possessing stolen documents and converting them to his own "use and gain." But here's the real shocker. The FBI knew the charges were false before its agents pounced on him. Here are the facts, which we can now document:

For weeks, Indian leader Hank Adams had been trying to arrange the return of the documents that the Indians had taken from government files. He had managed to secure a few papers and other stolen items, which he turned over to the FBI. Agent Dennis Hyten signed a receipt for them on December 11.

Yet after the January 31 FBI raid on Adams' apartment, Hyten signed the criminal complaint, charging him with possessing stolen documents. Our FBI informants say the FBI was really laying for us and timed the raid to catch Whitten in the net.

TV Film Tells All

Adams' role as the negotiator, merely trying to return the stolen documents to the government, was well known. The respected Indian writer Vine Deloria, author of "We Talk, You Listen," and "Custer Died for Your Sins," told us all the Indians involved in the theft knew Adams wanted to return everything.

There is pictorial evidence that the FBI's undercover man, John Arellano, who was listening as Adams spoke.

Boyajian read us Adams' exact words from the transcript: "We have some information on the nature of the documents that were taken and know that these documents also will be returned in a short period of time. And then the government will continue to lie. They'll say, you know, they weren't really returned or some were still missing."

Indians Remember

The incident is also recalled by two prominent Indian journalists, Richard LaCourse and Tom Cook, who were present. "Johnny (the FBI undercover man) was only four feet from Hank when he was talking about getting the things back," said LaCourse. Cook also recalled Adams' words.

This evidence of the FBI's duplicity is supported by massive additional documentation about Adams' innocent role as the middle man trying to persuade his more militant Indian colleagues to give back the stolen papers. From the White House on down, Adams spoke to government officials about retrieving and returning documents. Here are just a few of the witnesses who are available:

--A few weeks after the documents were taken last November, Los Angeles Times reporter Paul Houston spoke with Adams. Houston remembers that Adams gave him a large manila envelope to mail. Houston recalls clearly that it was addressed to the FBI with Adam's return address. The FBI knew, obviously, that the enclosed documents came from Adams.

--A New York Times story, featured prominently, reported that Adams told a press conference on December 8 that the Indian papers would be returned "as fast as is humanly possible," after they had been copied for the edification of the tribes.

--By January 11, Adams had dropped the idea of waiting for the documents to be copied. He told a National Press Club conference, as also reported by the New York Times, that he "would personally endeavor to obtain and return" the stolen documents. He set an outside target date of February 10.

--On January 24, the communications director of the Bureau of Indian Affairs, Tom Oxendine, wondering whether to start reconstructing certain BIA files, asked Adams whether he still hoped to get the documents back by mid-February. Adams, as quoted by Oxendine, said: "It's in the process of happening."

--On January 29, Adams personally informed Jane Wales of the Congressional Quarterly that he hoped to have the documents back at least by February 10. She published the tip in CQ's highly-respected "News Features" report for editors two days later.

On January 31, even as CQ was informing editors of the imminence of the papers' return, Adams had a 10 a.m. appointment at BIA with Dennis Creedon, an investigator for the House Approporiations Subcommittee. Adams planned to turn over the documents to Creedon, though he did not inform Creedon of his plans. Thirty minutes before the arrest, Adams called Creedon to say he was "on the way."

FBI Knew Truth

Certainly, the FBI agents, who had been scurrying all over the country in a futile search for the Indian documents, read the press accounts and their own informer's reports on Adams' activities. They knew Adams was trying to collect the stolen documents from Indians around the country and return them to the government. Yet the FBI arrested the innocent negotiator, Hank Adams, after the first large stash of stolen documents reached him.

Their real object, of course, was to nail Whitten, who had persuaded Adams to let him witness the return of the documents as a reporter. Whitten, of course, had no part in stealing the documents and at no time possessed them.

Then what was his crime? He was interprising enough to track down the documents that the embarrassed FBI couldn't find. He extracted the news from several documents and wrote the saga of the Broken Treaties Papers for our column.

Our stories told how the Nixon Administration, like those that preceded it, had cheated and neglected the Indians. We reported that the Indians wrongfully had stripped government files. But we also laid out evidence from the papers that the government had helped white exploiters to steal the Indians' water rights, mining claims and other resources.

Whitten is guilty only of embarrassing the Nixon Administration. The White House, apparently, would like to make this a crime.

Flood fight to be held

MEMPHIS — A flood fight exercise will be held Feb. 20-21 along the Mississippi River from St. Louis to New Orleans.

The exercise, which will be directed by the Lower Mississippi Valley Division (LMVD) headquartered in Vicksburg, is to test flood control techniques and emergency communications networks.

Maj. Gen. C. C. Noble, who is both division engineer and president of the Mississippi River Commission, points out that the exercise is being held following a period of unusually high stages.

"During the month of December," he notes, "the mean stage at St. Louis was five feet higher than normal, and at Cairo, the mean stage was higher than during the Decembers preceding the 1927 and 1937 floods. At both Vicksburg and New Orleans, the mean stages were the highest recorded for the month since 1919."

Noble adds that he is hopeful that the valley will have a sustained period of dry weather to provide opportunities to release water stored in flood control lakes and to lower river stages.

"This would make room for spring thaws and rains," he continues, "and avert any serious problems in the Mississippi Valley. However, we will be prepared for any emergency, and this month's flood fight exercise is a part of this preparation."

During the exercise, staffs at LMVD headquarters and at district offices in St. Louis, Memphis, Vicksburg and New Orleans will be working together to control "a rampaging river." Messages will be dispatched advising of problems and solutions, contact with other federal agencies and with state and local governments will be simulated, and stockpiles of emergency supplies will be located.

"We will be doing just about everything except sending work crews to the river," Noble comments. "We hope to have local levee boards and other agencies actively participating to further develop our co- ordination and feeling of teamwork. It's been more than 20 years since we have had a major flood on the Lower Mississippi River, and we have to be sure we are ready for the next one."

Commodity bill considered

JEFFERSON CITY — The Senate Committee on Agriculture, Conservation, Parks and Tourism has approved a bill by Sen. Nelson B. Tinnin, D-Hornersville, to update and clarify the commodity merchandising law passed in 1969.

Since that time, the producers of peaches, apples, eggs and turkeys have elected to come under the bill, with the producers approving a check- off system to finance research and promotion of their products.

The latest bill clarifies the provisions for petitions, hearings and the actual referendum on a commodity merchandising proposal. Tinnin said it also gives the state commissioner of agriculture more latitude in administering the law.

By an amendment, the committee eliminated cattle producers, many of whom objected to coming under the law.

Under the existing law, at least 200 producers may petition for permission to establish a commodity merchandising council.

IS THIS RIGHT or... IS THIS WRONG?

These are the remains of an aborted baby (in a hospital bucket) awaiting disposal.

There are two kinds of injustice: the first is found in those who do an injury, the second in those who fail to protect another from injury when they can. (CICERO, DE OFF. I, vii)

Fight For Life

Many people have called and written to this office asking "WHAT CAN WE DO NOW?" The United States Supreme Court, in a 7-2 decision, ruled that all criminal restrictions on the practice of abortion must be removed. This decision requires our IMMEDIATE attention and action. The decision allows abortion on request.

A. DEADLINE FEBRUARY 16TH!!!!!!!!!!!

Unknown to many in the pro-life movement, the decision handed down by the Supreme Court will NOT BECOME FINAL until 25 days after the decision was made (January 22, 1973). The 25 days run continuously and include weekends. During this period of time, the parties to the litigation (i.e. the Attorney Generals of Georgia and Texas) may petition the Court to rehear the case and the Court may accept the petition and, as a result, call back their BLACK MONDAY decision. Indications are that such a petition will not be filed and/or will not be accepted by the Court unless overwhelming public pressure is applied to the parties involved. Therefore:

1. The Attorneys General of Georgia and Texas must be asked to petition for this rehearing.
2. The U. S. Supreme Court must be asked to accept such a petition.
3. Both may be accomplished by placing great pressure upon the Attorneys General and the Court in the following ways:

a. The Attorneys General of every state in the union must be asked to personally petition the attorneys general of Georgia and Texas. This can best be accomplished through personal contact with your own attorney general, as well as letters to him urging him to be party to the request for rehearing.

Write or call:
Attorney General John Danforth
Jefferson City, Mo. 65101

b. A letter writing campaign (telegrams or nightletters too) must be directed toward the attorneys general of Georgia and Texas and to the U. S. Supreme Court to mount public pressure for a rehearing.

GEORGIA:
Arthur K. Bolton
Attorney General
c/o State Capitol
Atlanta, Georgia 30334

TEXAS:
Crawford C. Martin
Attorney General
c/o State Capital
Austin, Texas 76011

4. Write to the Justices of the U. S. Supreme Court. In that the court has ignored the public briefs submitted before them on behalf of the unborn child and in that the Court has perpetrated one of the greatest injustices ever, direct personal appeals to the Court are in order. Ask questions of decisions. Ask the Justices to reconsider the issue immediately. Write:

The Honorable Warren E. Burger (Dear Mr. Chief Justice)
The Honorable Harry A. Blackmun The Honorable William J. Brennan, Jr.
The Honorable William Orville Douglas, The Honorable Thurgood Marshall
The Honorable Lewis F. Powell, The Honorable William H. Rehnquist,
The Honorable Potter Stewart, The Honorable Raymond White.

Address for all of the Supreme Court Judges:
The Honorable (full name)
Justice of the Supreme Court
U. S. Supreme Court
Washington, D. C. 20543
(Remember that Associate Judges Byron White and William Rehnquist are sympathetic to our position)

B. IMMEDIATE ACTION REGARDING A CONSITUTIONAL AMENDMENT

If our efforts to overturn the present BLACK MONDAY DECISION should fail, then the next step will be the establishment of a constitutional amendment which would protect the right to life of everyone -- the young, the old, the born and the unborn, the wanted and the unwanted (a total life amendment).

At this point, great pressure in support of such an amendment must be implemented immediately. The time to act is now, when the public is in such strong support of our efforts. This can be accomplished in the following ways:

1. Write or call the President of the United States asking him to repudiate the Supreme Court decision and to support a constitutional amendment protecting all human life. President Nixon is due to deliver his State of the Union message very shortly and we should specifically ask that he announce his support of such an amendment at that time. Also, encourage him to issue a stay on the decision by executive order (e.g. Emancipation Proclamation).

Write to:
The President (Dear Mr. President:)
The White House
Washington, D.C. 20500

2. Write your Congressman/Senator (Phone, telegram, visit if in town)

a. Our main concern now is that Congressman Senators speak out against the Supreme Court decision.

Ann Landers

'House devils and Street angels' are grown-ups, too

Dear Ann Landers: I was inspired to write this letter when I read the comments of the complaining mother who said her teenage daughter is "charming, gracious, sweet and easy- going-- everywhere but at home."

I am no longer a teen- ager-- I am 20 now-- but I would like to cite the problem in reverse. It's my mother who is charming, gracious, sweet and easy- going-- to everyone except her immediate family. At home she is forever griping, complaining, criticizing, and acting all- around obnoxious. This is not my imagination, Ann. My father and brothers are also aware of her split personality.

So please publish my letter and give a daughter-- Equal Time

Dear Equal: "Split personalities" are not the private property of teen- age daughters or their mothers. Two- faced behavior can be found in husbands, sons-- any person who reserves his most charming personality for outsiders. I call these people "house devils and street angels." Thanks for writing.

Dear Ann Landers: Neither you nor V.F. in Washington did much to advance the cause for women's rights.

Did you know that if a woman is raped on a dark street in New York she cannot press charges unless she has a witness who will testify in court that she was forcibly overcome? In New York, the courts assume that a raped woman tantalized or seduced the male unless she can prove other wise.

In some states, if a husband comes home and finds a man in bed with his wife he can shoot them both. This is considered a "passion shooting." If a woman catches her husband in bed with another woman and shoots them she is charged with murder.

So don't come crying to us Women's Libbers for help, Ann, when your husband beats you or refuses to give you money. Or when your women friends desert you because you were too pro- male to help their cause.--- J.S. and T.V. of N.Y.

Dear J.S. And T.V.: I am neither pro- nor anti- Women's Lib. I am strongly in favor of women getting salaries and promotions commensurate with their ability. I am against discrimination based on color, creed or sex.

I am, however, opposed to loud- mouthed dames who try to push their way into all- male clubs where they are not welcome. Men do not belong every place-- and neither do women.

Dear Ann Landers: This letter is a rebuttal to "Lived Through It." The reader felt that when someone has lost a loved one, real friends should ask, "Is there anything we can do to help?"

Sorry, I don't agree. Real friends don't ask. They know what they can do to help. They can prepare food that can be easily served or put in a freezer. They can provide transportation for relatives. They can take the small children for a few days. They can be on hand to answer the phone. They can meet family and friends at the airport and offer a spare room to house them. The ways to held a friend in time of trouble are countless. All one needs is a genuine interest. True friends don't ask questions. They go ahead and do what needs to be done. The person who says, "Please call me if I can do anything," is mouthing a polite phrase.--- Been There Myself

Dear B.T.M.: Thank you for a no- nonsense, lay- it- on- the- line approach to a very real problem. I couldn't have responded better myself. In fact, I didn't.

Doctor Develops Home Treatment that
RINSES AWAY BLACKHEADS
HELPS DRY UP ACNE-PIMPLES . . .

QUEEN HELENE MINT JULEP MASQUE 15 MINUTE HOME TREATMENT
MUST SHOW IMMEDIATE IMPROVEMENT OR — YOUR MONEY BACK!

A leading New York Doctor, working with a cosmetic laboratory, has developed a simple home treatment that rinses away blackheads, helps dry up acne pimples, and shrinks enlarged pores. The name of this medicated product is QUEEN HELENE MINT JULEP MASQUE. Apply this delightfully Mint-Scented Cream and within 2 or 3 minutes an absorbing agent called Argilla, dries and turns this cream into a plastic-like masque. You will now feel as though hundreds of "tiny fingers" are kneading the skin, loosening pore-caked dirt, blackheads, and other foreign impurities. As it firms and hardens, its suction action draws out waste matter from the pores. . . In 15 minutes you simply rinse the masque away with lukewarm water which dissolves it immediately. When you wipe your face, you can see that blackheads and other pore "filler" actually come off on your wash cloth. And your skin feels clean . . . really clean . . . refreshed, smooth like velvet. Women 35 and over will enjoy the skin tightening experience as the masque relaxes tired facial muscles and eases tension lines on face and throat. If you suffer the agony of blackheads, acne-pimples, and enlarged pores, give yourself this home treatment and see the breath-taking results. Ask for it by name, QUEEN HELENE MINT JULEP MASQUE.

Job outlook better for college grads

ST. LOUIS (AP)--A recent survey of job placement directors at several Missouri colleges showed that the job outlook for graduates was getting brighter --if only slightly.

Placement directors indicated that although fewer recruiters are visiting campuses now than in the 60s, the recruiters are looking for more people this year than in the last three or four years.

Leo A. Eason, Washington University placement director, said prospects for students with training in banking and accounting are especially bright.

"Recruiters from Chicago and New York Banks talk about real growth," he said.

Dr. Anton Brasunas, associate dean of engineering at the University of Missouri-Rolla, said the job market in engineering is good too with the demand for engineering graduates at least 25 per cent higher than last year.

Brasunas even predicted that engineering students graduating in four years will have at least five offers apiece.

And backing up that claim was E. A. Siegerest, secretary of the Engineers Club of St. Louis, who said layoffs in the aerospace industry have caused some to underestimate the future in the engineering field.

Siegerist said 48,000 new engineers are needed yearly, but at present college enrollment rates there will only by 32,000 yearly by 1975.

Joseph H. Palmer, the University of Missouri-St. Louis placement director, added that graduates with part-time or summer experience in their fields will have an inside track for jobs.

Lakewood, Colo. officials have banned residents from keeping bears, or other wild animals on their premises.

Nixon asks respect

By FRANCES LEWINE
Associated Press Writer

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (AP) — President Nixon says the best way for the nation to welcome the American prisoners of war being released in Vietnam is "with quiet respect for their fortitude in the ordeal that is now ending for their privacy in the time ahead."

Nixon kept a close watch Sunday on developments relating to the first release of U.S. prisoners since the Vietnam cease-fire. After he was informed Sunday night that the airlift of prisoners from North Vietnam had begun, the Western White House issued this presidential statement:

"As the first group of Americans held as prisoners of war in Vietnam arrives home, the whole nation would like to be there to welcome them back to the country they have served so well.

"Let us remember, however, that this moment belongs above all to the returning men themselves and to the families waiting to welcome them. We can join most fittingly in that welcome, not with fanfare, but with quiet respect for their fortitude in the ordeal that is now ending and for their privacy in the time ahead.

"On the Veterans Administration Building in Washington are the words of Abraham Lincoln, whose birthday we are about to observe, reminding us of our obligation 'to care for him who shall have borne the battle.' Let us mark this special Sunday with a prayer of thanks for all who have borne this battle — and have made peace with honor possible. And let us resolve anew to be worthy of the sacrifices they have made."

The presidential statement reiterated an appeal Nixon made earlier Sunday after attending services at Palisades United Methodist Church in Capistrano Beach: "After what they've been through, they deserve some time to themselves, and they should not be exploited."

He suggested that all Americans — townspeople planning homecoming welcomes, officials at the Clark Field Evacuation Center in the Philippines and the press — let the POWs alone as they are reunited with their families and readjust to freedom.

The President told reporters outside the church that he had no plans to see any of the returning POWs.

"Let's let them see their families again; and then, if they want to see anybody, the secretary of defense or the President, we will be available," he said.

Lincoln religious in a personal way

By KATHERYN WITHERSPOON

Many people are shocked when they learn President Abraham Lincoln was shot while attending the theater on Good Friday. Others question whether he could have been religious because he never joined a church, he voted to keep the legislature in session on Christmas, and he dated many official letters Dec. 25

But these people are attempting to judge Lincoln out of the context of his time and they are wrong when they think he was not religious says Dr. Elton Trueblood, well-known theologian and author. He makes these points in his new book, "Abraham Lincoln Theologian of American Anguish," published by Harper & Row.

"Lincoln's almost total inattention to the conventional Christian calendar is more understandable when we realize his practice was consistent with the general cultural pattern of his time," Dr. Trueblood states. "In some church circles genuine pride was taken in the refusal to make a distinction between days, on the ground that all days should be equally holy. Lincoln appears to have felt this way to the end, and in this he was truly a man of the people."

Even Christmas was not widely emphasized in earlier America as it is today, the author says, and 100 years ago schools were sometimes conducted at Christmas, precisely as on other days.

"The President's lack of church membership was something which he shared with the great majority of his fellow citizens," writes Dr. Trueblood. "Only 25 per cent of Americans were church members in 1860, the year he was first elected President."

It would seem natural in light of today's customs for Lincoln to have joined the Pigeon Creek Church as a boy, particularly when he served as sexton for the meeting house, D. Trueblood writes.

"We get new perspective however, when we learn that in the pioneer churches few young people were accepted into membership. Parents who were church members tended to assume the responsibility for the spiritual guidance of their families. People were not expected to apply for membership apart from the contemplation of matrimony. It was because membership was taken seriously that it was normally reserved for maturity."

In most American theological circles, the emphasis on the church is not much more than 60 years in duration, says Dr. Trueblood, and "Abraham Lincoln was following the expected pattern of thought when his religion was centered far more in the Bible than in the church."

In his maturity, Lincoln contrasted what he heard of "man- made creeds and dogmas" with the Bible which he had studied daily since childhood, and "was well aware that not one of the creeds or dogmas could be found in the Bible," Dr. Trueblood points out. He quotes Lincoln as saying, "I cannot, wihtout mental reservations, assent to long and complicated creeds and catechisms."

As a youth, with his brilliant mind, Lincoln enjoyed taking different sides on any issue in debates for mental stimulation, and in such exercises for the sake of argument expressed some atheistic views which are wrongly quoted against him as his beliefs, Dr. Trueblood says.

Dr. Trueblood shows that Lincoln constantly prayed, asked others to pray for him, and attended church services, renting pews. The author discusses the classic religious significance of some of the Civil War President's addresses and says Lincoln excelled the leading theologians of his time in thought and expression.

It was Lincoln's religious nature and constant effort to understand the will of God that gave him his "deep moral revulsion toward salvery," says Dr. Trueblood. However, Lincoln was never simplistic and saw all angles to a question, therefore he felt a great sense of responsibility in holding the United States together as a union. As a result, he "has as little sympathy with the instant Abolitionists as he had with the apologists for slavery," the author writes. He sought a way to end slavery without war.

Some who judge Lincoln out of the context of his times tend today to attack him because he did not take quicker direct action to end all slavery, regardless of the union, and because he "never affirmed the factual equality of the races," Dr. Trueblood writes. But factual equality was not the point at issue, the author states. "The question, Lincoln said over and over, is not what a man's particular abilities may be, but what his rights are as a human being made in God's image."

Dr. Trueblood, Professor at Large of Earlham College, spent eight years "immersing" himself in all Lincoln's writings before he started work on the book, which he says he wrote because "We know who the greatest figure is in the American experiment, and we cannot leave him alone."

HOUSELIGHTS SHINE WITH PARTISAN GLOW

JEFFERSON CITY — Richard J. Rabbitt, the new speaker of the Missouri House of Representatives, expects to bring about a lot of changes in that body, but one change he already has made is causing mutterings by unhappy legislators.

The names of he representatives are no longer listed alphabetically on the two massive electronic voting boards in the House, but instead correspond to the seating arrangement on the House floor. Because the seating arrangement is based on party membership, all the Republicans in the House are listed first; followed by the Democrats.

One of the objections to the system was voiced by Rep. Harold Reisch (R-Columbia), who said he finds it difficult to check how someone else is voting. Reisch said finding a particular legislator's name now requires running through the entire list.

But the principle objection to the new listing is not confusion, but as Rep. Robert O. Snyder (R-Kirkwood) said, "It helps to create more partisanship, when our purpose ought to be to get good legislation through regardless of party lines."

Snyder, the minority leader in the House, said the Republicans were not consulted about the switch, and that most GOP representatives don't like the new system. He explained that the system might encourage legislators to vote along party lines because the floor leaders can quickly tell who's out of line with the party vote by checking the board. If there's one green (yes) light in the midst of a whole row of red (no) lights, the name of the man out of line becomes evident quickly. The floor leader can then rush over to where the man is sitting and urge him to change his vote before the Speaker orders the votes locked into place.

In most cases, the 97-66 edge the Democrats hold is not in jeopardy by a close vote, But part of the Speaker's power is his ability to hold the voting board open as long as he wants while his floor lieutenants try to persuade mavericks to go along.

Rep. Reisch also noted that a member might tend to go along with the party line if he had not read the legislation under consideration, and might check the board to see how he should vote.

But the man responsible for the change thinks the division along party lines is helpful. "The arrangement helps with party responsibility on party issues," Rabbitt said. "Of course, 90 per cent of the issues voted on are not party issues, but it's helpful in letting a new member know when an issue is considered a party issue."

Under House rules, the Speaker has responsibility for supervision and direction of the House, and Rabbitt used the broad discretion granted him under the rule to order the change in the voting arrangement. There is no House rule specifically governing how votes are to be taken, and usually when there is no House rule to cover an area, the Missouri General Assembly abides by a body of rules known as Cannon's Law. Cannon's Law states that votes are to be taken alphabetically, leading one Missouri senator to describe the Missouri House as "the only legislative body in the world which votes by party and not by alphabet."

Rabbitt said the House abides by Cannon's Law for basic parliamentary law, and that rules for proceedure are made by the Speaker. He cited two other reasons for the change. "First," he said, "once you have the boardwired according to seats, you don't have to rewire it when the names change, and second, it helps the new members learn other people's names by checking their names on the board against their seat."

Another Rabbitt innovation has brought praise from leaders of both parties. The Speaker is enforcing the House rules more strictly than his predecessors, insisting on quiet and limiting the number of people in the side galleries. The new quiet and spirit of decorum, Rabbitt said, have brought him many compliments.

The new Speaker also has set about trying to improve the per diem expense allowance of House members by introducing a bill to raise the $10 daily allowance to $25, which he calls "more realistic considering the cost of living in Jefferson City." Another bill which Rabbitt is backing would set up an independent commission to review the issue of legislator's pay raises.

Rabbitt said he also would like to see a bill passed to make the Speaker and other officers of the House and Senate full-time employes with commensurate salary increases, and to prohibit them from engaging in the private practice of law or any other job while they held state office.

40 dead in explosion of storage tank

NEW YORK (AP) — The disaster that turned a huge liquid gas storage tank into a fiery tomb for 40 men "was not associated with the storage of the product but with the repairs" under way at the Staten Island installation, Fire Chief John T. O'Hagan says.

O'Hagan's statement Sunday left unanswered the central question: What caused the supposedly empty $31-million tank to erupt in flames Saturday and its 150-foot dome to fall in an avalanche of concrete and steel?

By early today, 26 bodies had been placed in temporary pine coffins and lifted by crane from the soot-blackened pit 61 feet deep. Many were burned beyond recognition.

Firemen with air hammers broke through concrete slabs and chunks of ice overnight in an effort to find 14 others. "Some of the victims are probably under water," a fire captain said.

Opened by Texas Eastern Transmission Corp. in 1970, the 600,000-barrel tank stored natural gas in its more compact liquid state at 260 degrees below zero. The gas was revaporized during peak winter demand periods.

Letters to the Editor

February 5, 1973

Dear Editor:

The Soviets have their eye on gaining control of Rhodesian chrome ore and South African gold (80% of the world's production). Through their control of the United Nations they forced through sanctions against Rhodesia.

According to "The Forecaster" of September 3, 1972, "As long as they could keep an effective blockade up against Rhodesia, the Soviets were able to sell Soviet chrome to the U.S. at fantastic prices ... The inferior Russian chrome ore was continually being peddled at prices 200%- 300% and sometimes even higher for U.S. dollars. This little tactic alone helped the Soviets gain scarce dollars, and added to the U. S. dollar drain, the U. S. balance of payments deficit. The Soviets got the UN to do the dirty work with the blockade. The Soviets got to peddle inferior chrome ore at fantastic prices to their enemy (the USA) for scarce currency. They further weakened their enemy by weakening its monetary posture and draining its monetary strength. They moved to expand their foothold on the big continent in Africa. There were only two major producers of chrome ore in the world, Rhodesia and the Soviet Union, and the Soviets had succeeded brilliantly in isolating the competition. The USA itself, which demanded great quantities of chrome ore and refined chrome, found itself paying through the nose for this product to its enemy (with Congressional approval). The USA is not self- sufficient in chrome ore production and must depend on the outside world for around 90% of the chrome it needs. That means that, in the event of the outbreak of war, the USA would be dependent upon its greatest enemy, the Soviet Union, for a strategic war material!"

No war can be fought without chrome and gold.

Sincerely,
C. C. Moseley,

Prayer for today

from the Upper Room

The path of the just is as the shining light, that shineth more and more unto the perfect day. (Proverbs 4:18)

PRAYER: Dear heavenly Father, through Jesus we have the assurance that Thou wilt lead us gently, step by step, until we learn to walk confidently with Thee by faith. We thank Thee that every day is a time for trusting Thee for all and committing our all to Thee. Help us to make a good beginning this day and to follow through with Christ, in whose name we pray. Amen.

What's the Law?

The case of the sexy defendant

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

Stanley was suing Seena for breach of contract. A charming and sexy looking girl, Seena proved to be a very pleasant adversary, but not to Stanley. On two occasions during the trial the judge caught Seena winking at several different male members of the jury, and on each occasion he admonished her for doing so. In fact, on at least one occasion one of the jurors even sheepishly returned the wink.

When the jury ultimately returned a verdict in favor of Seena, Stanley, fit to be tied, filed an appeal demanding a new trial.

"The only reason I lost," he complained, "was because sexy Seena was flirting with the jury. My case began to sink when she began to wink."

"That's not so," was Seena's answer. "The verdict was in my favor because the facts were in my favor. Besides," she added, "if Stanley wanted a new trail, he should have requested one when the judge admonished me for winking. Now that that trial is over, it's too late to request a new one. He held his peace too long."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you grant Stanley a new trail because of sexy Seena's flirting with the jury?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that the general rule is that unless the conduct of any attorney or his witnesses is such as to impair gravely the calm and dispassionate consideration of the case by the jury, a court is not required to grant a new trail.

In this case, noted the judge, Stanley's failure to request a new trial at the time of Seena's misconduct, which was called to his attention, indicated that he did not think it had irretrievably marred the impartiality of the proceedings. Thus, under the circumstances of the case, he was not entitled to a new trial.

Lions, Camels Dunklin Champs

CAMPBELL — Coach Jim Isbell and his Senath - Hornersville Lions won the Dunklin County Tourney championship Saturday night in a 62-56 battle with Malden. Campbell captured the B-team championship in an upset over the Clarkton Reindeer, 33-31.

The Lions, who were seeded first in the tourney, played a consistent game. Herman Brown was high scorer with 18 markers. Kent Waggoner and Larry Davis dumped in 14 and 13 points respectively for the victors.

Scoring remained close during the first quater but Senath was able to slip by the Greenwaves by four points to take an early edge. Malden remained within striking distance of the Lions in second frame action. Both teams were held to 15 points apiece and Senath maintained their lead. At half the score stood at 35-31.

The Greenwaves came back in the third quarter to fall behind the pace set by Senath. Shots were not connecting for Malden and the Lions took advantage taking the ball down court and making their baskets good. Senath was able to hold the lead in the fourth frame to take home a championship win.

Clarance Sherrod hit for 15 points for Malden. Both Jim Robinson and John Townes came up with 13 markers for MHS.

The fourth-seeded Campbell Camels moved up through tourney action to defeat number two-rated Clarkton for a B-team championship victory. Hensen, with 16 points, was high scorer for the winners.

Both teams ran into cold shooting and found their shots falling away. Campbell gained the edge in the first frame by a single point 5-4. Action during the second quarter proved to be slow also. The Reindeers were able to pick up the extra point that the Camels had on them to tie the game at 12-all at halftime.

Clarkton once again had shooting trouble in the third quarter and Campbell was able to move out from the Reindeers by four markers. Playing during the final frame was stepped up somewhat. Clarkton came back and began gaining on the Camels. However, the Reindeers rally fell short and Campbell had the win.

Wilson hit for 12 markers for the Clarkton team.

SHS streak ended, 68-61

MAYFIELD, Ky. — Despite the 30 point performance of Pope Hunt, the Sikeston Bulldogs had their four game win streak snapped Saturday night by the Mayfield Cardinals 68-61.

A slow start, in which the Bulldogs managed only 10 points in the first eight minutes of action, was blamed for the defeat. Mayfield took a seven point, 17-10, lead in the first period and held off numerous late charges by their Missouri visitors to maintain their dominence over the SHS athletic squads. The Cardinals dominated a football series that the schools had going for five years.

Twice in the final eight minutes Coach N.P. McDaniel's hardcourt crew drew to within three points of the host team, but were unable to pull ahead due to floor mistakes at critical points in the contest.

From the outset of the game it was obvious that a great deal of body contact was normal in western Kentucky basketball. This type of play was new to Sikeston and the difficulty in adjusting to this type of play took time.

The Bulldogs outshot their opponents from the floor, 43 per cent to 41 per cent, but were again beaten at the free throw line as Mayfield poured in 16 of 20 charity tosses for an 80 per cent mark compared to Sikeston's 54 per cent average on seven of 13 attempts from the line. The Bulldogs also made 19 floor mistakes as compared to the Cardinals' 13 miscues.

In the opening period Mayfield jumped into an early 17-10 advantage behind forward Wayne Lovelace's eight markers on his first four field goal attempts.

The Bulldogs seemed to be adjusting to the greater amount of body contact in the second quarter, but fell three points farther back to be down 35-24 at intermission.

Action in third frame saw Sikeston come out fired up and outscore the MHS crew 20-14 to narrow the host's lead to a mere four points at the buzzer. Pope Hunt, Sikeston's six- foot- four-inch pivot man, led the charge with 14 points in that period while on his way to a 30 point evening's performance.

At the tip- off to begin fourth quarter action, the Cardinals had seemed to regain their composure as they rebuilt a temprorary 10 point lead before half the final eight minutes had ticked off the clock.

The Sikeston quintet again went to work on narrowing the lead, and were down only three points, 64-61, with just under 90 seconds left in the contest. Mayfield prevailed however, as they poured in four charity tosses in the last minute to ice the game and hand SHS its first loss in five games.

High point honors on the night went to Pope Hunt as he connected on 15 of 26 floor shots for his best game offensively this season. Hunt also pulled off nine rebounds to lead Sikeston in that department. Roy Bowman, who had an outstanding game offensively and defensively, also scored in double figures for the Bulldogs with 12 points.

Bill Hubbard, Mayfield's six- foot- seven- inch center, had 16 points in the second half after being shut off completely in the first half. Larry Sanderson, Keith Pyle, and Wayne Lovelace followed with 15, 13, and 12 points respectively.

Coach Bud Spears' junior varsity dropped the opener to the Mayfield junior squad, 70-39, as the Cardinal jayvees connected on 28 of 41 free throws to keep the game out of reach.

Roger Tillman had high game honors in the B contest with 18 tallies.

Jackson wrestlers to state

Four wrestlers representing Sikeston in the state class L regional wrestling tournament at Horton Watkins high school in Ladue Saturday ran into very tough competition and could not qualify for the state championship wrestle-offs which will be held in Columbia this weekend.

Freshman Scott Hutchison placed fourth in regional competition by beating Dan Abbott of Vianney in 'wrestle- backs' after Hutchison had been beaten by Tom Raney of Normandy, who eventually went on to win the championship in the 112-pound division.

Jim Huff, wrestling in the 119- pound division, was beaten in first action by Tim Banks of University City and by Dennis Elkins of Lafayette in 'wrestle- backs'. Banks, a senior, was state champion in the 105- pound division his sophomore year and also state champ in the 112- pound division last year. He is as well odds-on favorite to win the state championship in the 119-pound division this year.

Tom Bridger and Bill Lewis, Sikeston grapplers in the 105- and 132- pound divisions, were eliminated in first round action and were not permitted to 'wrestle-back' because their respective first round opponents, Dan Thomann of Desmit and Mark Beckman of Normandy, had been eliminated from competition.

In class M-S action at Maplewood high school Saturday, Coach Paul Webber's Jackson Indians edged out the host school to win their first regional championship ever.

Three wrestlers from Jackson also qualified for state competition next weekend by virtue of either first or second place finishes in regionals.

The three qualifiers for state wrestle- offs were 98-pounder L. G. Loos, who finished second; 119-pounder Bruce Hoffman, who finished first; and 126-pounder John Wilson, who finished first.

Other wrestlers who finished in regionals but did not qualify for the state championships were 132-pounder David Ramsey, third place; 138- pounder Robert Meyer, third place; 167-pounder Bruce Windeknecht, third place; 185- pounder Pat Malone, fourth place; and heavyweight John Goodson, fourth place.

Mizzou faces stiff tests

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Looking at the three league losses of his Missouri Tigers, Coach Norm Stewart observed last week Mizzou might "have to have some help."

But before the Tigers can worry about who is going to play the spoiler role in a Big Eight basketball race now controlled by Kansas State, they have to help themselves tonight against Oklahoma.

The Sooners helped arrange Missouri's current predicament with a 90-77 upset a week ago at Norman. Another victory tonight in Columbia would shove John MacLeod's young club past the Tigers into third place.

Missouri goes in with a 4-3 league mark to the Sooners' 44. Then the Tigers must travel to meet second-place Colorado, 5-2, Saturday in Boulder.

Colorado steps out of the league to visit Creighton in the only other action involving Big Eight members tonight.

Kansas State took over sole ownership of the Big Eight lead with a strong second-half performance against Colorado Saturday that led to an 81-62 triumph before the first sellout crowd at Boulder in two years.

That boosted the Wildcats, 18th-ranked starting the week, to 6-1 in the Big Eight and 16-3 over-all. The eighth-rated Missourians also are 16-3 and Oklahoma takes a 14-6 total to the Tigers' new fieldhouse.

Kansas State seems to be in good shape to maintain its lofty position, with four of its last seven conference foes scheduled in friendly Ahearn Fieldhouse at Manhattan.

The first of those games is Tuesday night against Kansas. Although the Wildcats already own a 77-68 decision this season over the Jayhawks at Kansas, the Sunflower State rivalry has produced more than its share of surprises.

The Jayhawks could well have been looking ahead to KSU when they stumbled against lowly Nebraska Saturday. The Cornhuskers' 59-46 upset at Lawrence dropped KU to 3-3. Coupled with Oklahoma's 83-78 comeback victory at Oklahoma State Saturday afternoon, it also got Nebraska, 2-5, out of the loop basement and left OSU, 1-6, alone in last place.

Rounding out Saturday night's action, early-season leader Iowa State fell 86-79 victim to Missouri and settled into sixth place at 4-5.

No one was more surprised by the Kansas loss to Nebraska than Jayhawk boss Ted Owens, who had observed prior to the game: "All of the other contenders are beating Nebraska, so it's necessary we do, too."

The Hawks likely will no longer qualify for the contender class if they lose to K-State, and the situation is complicated by the schedule that puts KU on the road for five of its last eight games, including trips to Colorado and Oklahoma after the Kansas State contest.

In pulling away from a 40-38 halftime edge to scorch Colorado, K-State got a career high of 25 points from Lon Kruger. He hit 11 of 11 free throws and Larry Williams went 6 for 6 as the Wildcats, the league's most accurate free throw shooters, converted 23 of 28 charity chances.

In the showdown with K-State, the Buffs lost junior Lee Haven—who was averaging 20.2 against league competition— with an ankle sprain in the early going after he had scored only two points. Colorado had won five straight.

Missouri's Al Eberhard ran his streak of free throws to 27 straight before missing Saturday against Iowa State. Eberhard, described by Stewart as a "low-mistake player," had 19 points and 11 rebounds while John Brown's 24 points led the Tigers.

That was the best scoring effort in six games for Brown, but he remains second to Oklahoma freshman Alvan Adams in scoring. Adams pitched in 36 points as OU made it six straight over Oklahoma State.

The 6-9 freshman is the highest-scoring rookie in Sooner history, his 454 points surpassing the 1966 high of 441 by sophomore Don Sidle.

The Oklahoma press limited the Pokes to two points in the final five minutes. Freshman John Breathwit contributed 10 for the winners, giving him 37 in the last three games for the Sooners, who snapped a string of six straight road losses.

Nebraska halted a four-game skid, its longest since the 1964-65 season, and presented Coach Joe Cipriano his first victory in 10 tries at Lawrence. Freshman Jerry Fort and junior Lee Harris contributed 20 of the Huskers' 32 first-half points and added 10 more in the second half against the cold-shooting Jayhawks. Kansas hit just 36 per cent from the field.

Poor shooting also helped do in the Buffs against Kansas State. Colorado fans had termed their team the "Bullseye Bunch" after a string of 50-and 60-per cent efforts, but CU fell off to 40 per cent against the scrappy Wildcat defense.

This week's schedule::

Tonight—Oklahoma at Missouri; Colorado at Creighton.

Tuesday—Kansas at Kansas State.

Saturday—Missouri at Colorado, afternoon; Oklahoma State at Kansas; Kansas State at Iowa State; Nebraska at Oklahoma.

Cagle leads CHS to Bootheel title

HAYTI— The Hayti fans had a disappointing night as they sat and watched the Indians fall victims to top-seeded Caruthersville in the Bootheel Conference Tourney championship 73-70 Saturday night. The Tigers failed to make a sweep of the tourney when the B-team, also seeded number one, suffered a defeat at the hands of North Pemiscot 54-40.

Joe Calge led the balanced attack on the Indians with 27 markers. Dennis Yarbrough followed with 13 and Robert Marshall and George Cunningham dropped in 12 and 13 respectively.

First quarter playing set the pace for the entire game as each team battled for a small edge to hold onto. Both teams were playing good ball and shots were going in from everywhere. Scoring was at a deadlock at the end of the first frame action, 23- 23. In the second frame, the lead changed hands back and forth but the Tigers were finally able to move out ahead of Hayti and hold a six point halftime lead.

Caruthersville was not to take it easy after intermission. Hayti played stubborn ball and fought back to within a single point of the Tigers in the third frame. Action in the final quarter closely resembled that of the second, with the lead see- sawing back and forth between the two teams, but it was Caruthersville that was able to gain that final edge to capture the first place win.

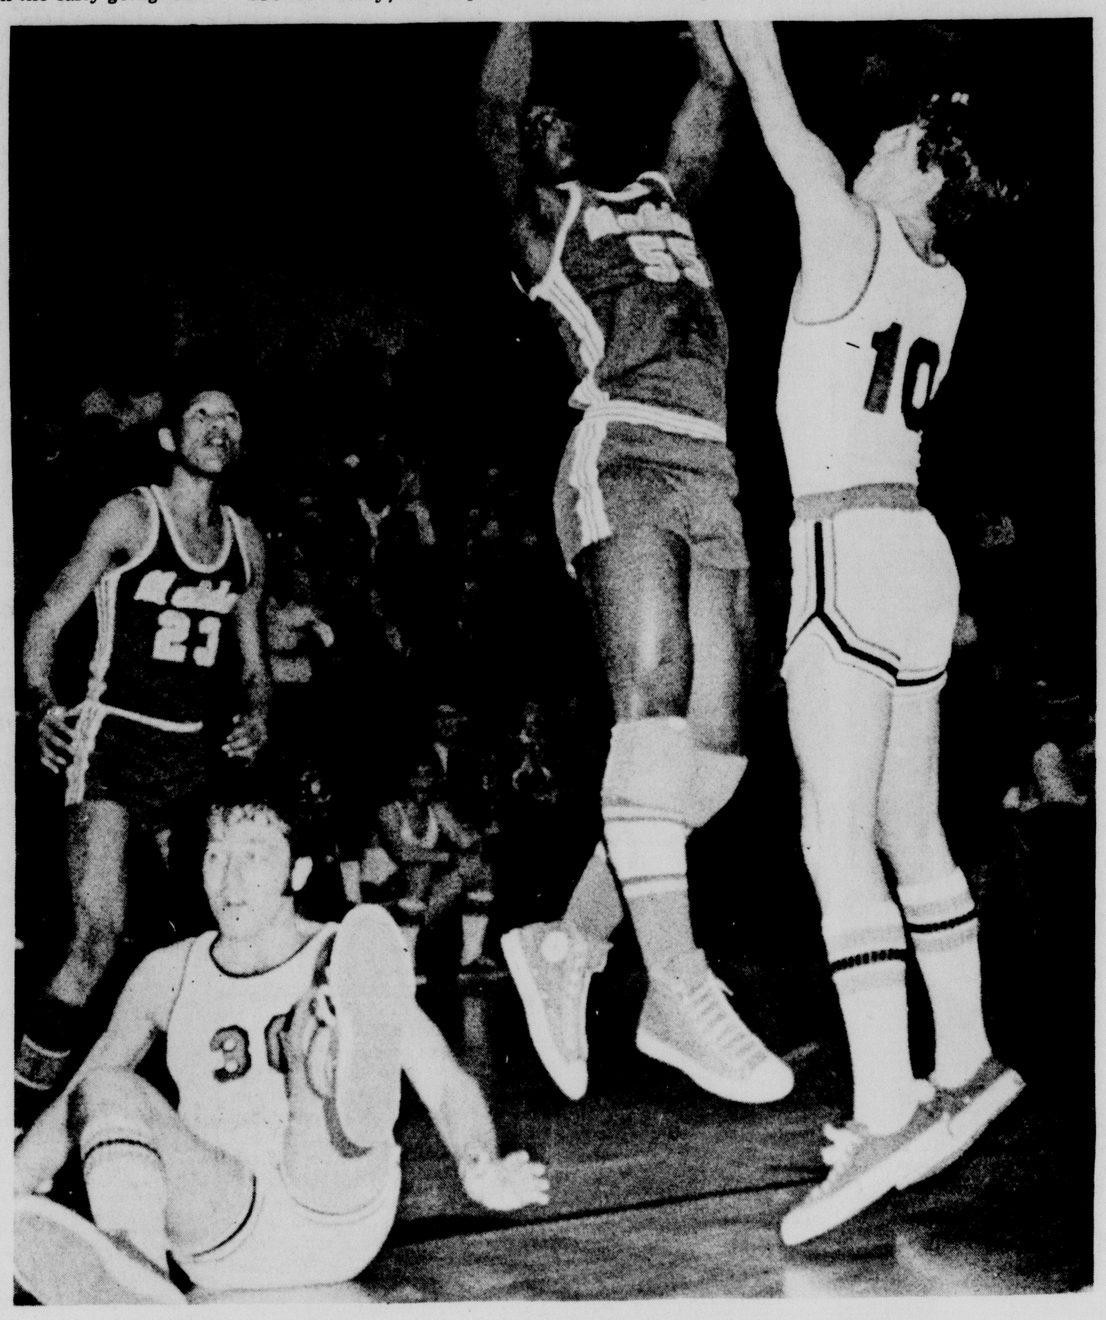
High man for the Indians was Freddie Booth, hitting for 22 markers. Oscar Cushingberry dumped in 16 points with Isaac Smith adding 15.

The Caruthersville's T-team ran into trouble during the first quarter and could not make a come- back to overcome the Mustangs. North Pemiscot set the pace and marked up 17 points to the Tigers' seven. Caruthersville began making their shots in the second frame but still trailed North Pemiscot at the half, 31- 24.

The Mustangs came back from intermission and was off the target. The Tigers' defense held their shooting down to move within five points of the North Pemiscot team. The Mustangs were not to be held down and in the final quarter of play, they managed to turn the tables on Caruthersville to claim the first place title.

Stewart pumped in 19 points to earn high scoring honors for the Mustangs. Robinson and Norris hit for 15 and 11 markers respectively. For the Tigers, it was Walton connecting for 15 points and Palmer 14.

Scoring:



Sitting down on the job

Jimmy Robinson (55) goes high into the air to launch a shot over the out-stretched arm of Senath-Hornersville's Ricky Allen (10) during championship action of the Dunklin county tournament at Cardwell Saturday night. The Lions Kent Waggoner (30) seems to be setting down on the job.

TRCC Raiders lose

ST. LOUIS— Forest Park community college scored 25 points from the free throw line Saturday night on the way to a 87- 74 victory over Three Rivers CC of Poplar Bluff.

The loss dropped the defending Missouri Junior College Athletic conference champion Raiders into a tie for the lead with Mineral Area. Both sport 7- 2 league marks.

Coach Gene Bess' Raiders fell behind 40- 34 at half and was never able to make any headway against the host, who stayed at the charity line most of the game.

Ron Johnson paced the Raiders offense with 17 points. Lenny McFerren Mark Baker and Steve Beckering scored 15, 12, and 10 points respectively for TRCC.

Dennis Sims padded his lead as the Raiders leading rebounder with 17 grabs.

TRCC out- shot the host from the field, 33- 31, but took a 25- 8 licking at the charity line on the way to their seventh defeat in 25 games this season. Forest Park moved their record to 18- 8.

The Raiders host the Memphis State freshman tonight at the Poplar Bluff high school gym.

Scoring:

FOREST PARK (87)

Advance B-team wins third in varsity meet

ZALMA — The Zalma Invitational Basketball Tourney was brought to a close Saturday night with Advance's B-team dumping Marquand 84-30 for third place and the championship was won by the top- seeded Naylor Eagles in overtime, 79-77 over Greenville.

The hot shooting trio of Ron Oller, Joe Cummins, and Dave Tropf did it again Saturday night, as they bombed the nets to carry the Hornets to a roaring upset over a varsity squad. Oller was high man with 21 points with Cummins and Tropf added 20 apiece.

The Hornets were all over the court shooting, rebounding, and guarding, Advance came out hot in the first quarter and couldn't miss. Marquand, on the other hand, couldn't find the basket and was able to hit for a mere five points. The Hornets kept the pace going in the second quarter and were running over the Tigers. Marquand failed to pull themselves together and at half, they trailed 48-13.

The last half was a replay of the first. The Tigers could not penetrate the Hornets' defense but were able to contain the Advance team to 13 points in the third frame. In the final quarter, the Hornets ripped the nets for 23 markers to capture a big win.

The two Cox boys for Marquand shared scoring honors with 10 points each.

The championship game was an exciting way to end tourney action. The two top-seeded teams made an all-out effort to battle their way to first place and when the final buzzer sounded, the Naylor Eagles came out on top.

Naylor ran into cold shooting in the first frame and Greenville took advantage, moving out to a 20-8 lead. The Bears maintained the pace they set in the first quarter, and even though the Eagles found the mark, it was not enough to pull within the Greenville team. At half, the Bears held a 15 point lead over Naylor.

Coming back from intermission, Greenville played a consistent game, withholding Naylor from gaining on them. Naylor rallied during the final frame to come up with 26 points and managed to stop Greenville's shooting attack to tie the game up at 69-all. The overtime period was evely matched but the Eagles were able to dump in an extra basket on the Bears to take the championship win.

Garry Purdom was high scorer of the night hitting for 24 markers. Mike Yound dumped in 17 points with Kenny Maples and Doug Johnson contributing 13 and 12 respectively.

Five Greenville players hit in double figures despite the loss. Ken Shell led the scoring for the Bears with 20 points, with Dan McCrum following close behind with 19. Bill McClean dumped in 14, Doug Stroup 12 and Ron Montgomery added 10.

Dangerous patterns in sky

Vapor trails from big jets are nothing new in Southeast Missouri skies. Deeper in the Bootheel, near Portageville or Hayti, it's a common thing to see several of the craft from the Air Force base at Blytheville, Ark., flying over during a day's time. Saturday proved to be just a little more than expected in those clear Bootheel skies as two jets, heading north from the general area of the air base, and one flying south toward that same general area (far left), played a dodging game at high altitude. The first maneuvers occured when the two outside planes evidently spotted each other on radar and the one traveling north flew to the right to avoid close contact. After several miles, that plane swung north again but repeated the right hand swing and then north again to add distance for the fly- by of the two aircraft. Then it looks as though a second north bound plane appeared in a similar flight path as the first and, judging from the flat "S" shape of its contrail, it took a similar course correction to also widen its fly- by path with the southbound aircraft. The action was photographed from I- 55 south of Portageville by Daily Standard Wire and Photo Editor Tim Ludwig.

143 American POWs return home today

CLARK AIR BASE, Philippines (AP) — A total of 143 prisoners of war came back today under the Stars and Stripes, the flag some had not seen for eight years.

Most of the men flown to this base after release from Communist captivity in North and South Vietnam were reported in good physical condition as they checked into a U.S. hospital.

"We are honored at the opportunity to serve our country under difficult circumstances," said the first prisoner to step out of the first returning hospital plane, Navy Capt. Jeremiah A. Denton Jr. of Virginia Beach, Va. "God bless America."

More than 60 doctors on duty at the base hospital began examining the freed prisoners.

The first to arrive were 116 from North Vietnamese prisons, ferried on the 2½-hour flight from Hanoi by three U.S. Air Force Starlifter hospital planes.

"No emergency medical treatment was required and did not seem necessary," a spokesman said later. "On the most part the men were ebullient."

A second contingent of 26 men headed here from South Vietnam. They were released north of Saigon following a daylong dispute that delayed their departure. A 27th prisoner released with them remained behind at a Saigon hospital.

Spokesmen at Clark said large numbers of the returned prisoners requested a regular American dinner instead of the bland diets doctors had planned to nurse their digestive systems. And most got it.

The prisoners in South Vietnam — 19 servicemen and 8 civilians — were turned over at Loc Ninh 75 miles north of Saigon and flown to Saigon in U.S. helicopters for transfer to hospital planes and the 2-hour and 15-minute flight to Clark Air Base.

The releases at Hanoi and Loc Ninh left 341 American prisoners in North Vietnamese hands, 72 in South Vietnam and 7 in Laos, according to Hanoi's count supplied to the United States. The remainder are to be released at two-week intervals in groups about the same size as today's.

The first group of released prisoners stepped out into freedom with sharp salutes, cautious smiles and their heads held high — their emotions thinly concealed behind the formality of the moment.

In gray jackets and dark gray trousers provided by their North Vietnamese captors, the men released from the "Hanoi Hilton" made their first contact with home as emotionally charged crowds chanted, "Welcome home. We love you."

The applause and cheers from the excited crowd of several thousand military personnel, dependents and newsmen were steady as the POWs, some of them limping, walked off the hospital planes at this base, their first stop on their 12,000-mile trip home.

One man produced a handkerchief-sized blue-lettered sign and held it up so the crowd and newsmen could see it, "God bless America and Nixon."

A tough-looking Marine major wiped his eyes. A two-star Air Force general waved both his arms high, the fingers on both hands forming the V-sign.

Out of the glare of the welcoming brass and the television cameras, the POWs seemed like an excited group of school boys — kids on their way to a high school football game, hanging out of the bus windows, waving and shouting at exuberant people who lined the one-mile drive from the flight line to the 250-bed base hospital.

Reporters were not allowed to interview the men, but one newsman shouted, "How does it feel to be back?"

"Great," yelled back a prematurely gray-haired man with a bright smile of yellowed teeth. "Wonderful," beamed another hanging out of the next window.

Lt. Cmdr. Everett Alvarez, held nearly nine years, appeared trim and fit.

In Bootheel accidents

1 killed, 9 injured

One person was killed and nine were injured in area traffic accidents over the weekend, according to the highway patrol.

Artie Ivan Hillis, 22, of Williamsville was killed at 9:45 p.m. Saturday on Route A in downtown Williamsville when his car, traveling at a high rate of speed, ran off the right side of the road and struck a tree.

He was dead on arrival at Doctors Hospital in Poplar Bluff. His body was taken to Gish- Bowles Funeral Home in Piedmont.

A one- car accident at 10:30 p.m. Saturday at St. Jude Industrial Park on Noranda Road one and one-half miles east of Marston resulted in injuries to James Robert Kendrick, 27, of Portageville. He was taken to Missouri Delta Community Hospital in Sikeston with a possible broken arm.

The accident occurred when Kendrick's car skidded through an intersection, ran off the road and struck an embankment.

Troy Eugene Sowell, 27, of Dexter received head cuts in an accident at 6:45 p.m. Saturday on Route V nine miles north of Cape Girardeau when his car ran off the road on a curve and struck an embankment. His car had been traveling at a high rate of speed, the patrol said.

Dora Ethel Johnson, 36, of Sikeston received minor head cuts in an accident at 7:20 p.m. Saturday on Route Y two miles west of Sikeston when her car, traveling at a high rate of speed, ran off the road into a yard, struck a pole, a tree and a parked car.

She received minor head and leg cuts and was treated and released from Missouri Delta Community Hospital in Sikeston.

Four persons were injured in an accident at 12:45 a.m. Sunday on a gravel road six miles west of Malden when a car driven by David Eugene Allen, 29, of Malden ran off the road at a high rate of speed, struck a small ditch embankment, overturned three times and came to rest on its wheels.

Allen received a possible dislocated left shoulder and scratches and bruises; Daphna Allen, 45, of Malden suffered a broken right leg and bruises and scratches; Sally Sullivan, 27, of Malden sustained bruises and scratches; and Jerry Leon Sullivan, 30, of Malden received bruises and scratches. All were taken to Dunklin County Memorial Hospital in Kennett.

William Colwell Spencer, 68, of Gridley, Ill., and his wife, Pearl Loretta Spencer, 66, of Gridley, received minor injuries in a traffic accident at 2:10 p.m. Sunday two miles east of Wyatt on Highway 60.

Spencer received bruises and his wife suffered bruises and a right shoulder injury. They were taken to Missouri Delta Community Hospital in Sikeston.

The accident occurred when Spencer started to pass another vehicle, pulled back because of close oncoming traffic, ran off the road and overturned.

Supreme Court orders new trial in Cape case

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — A new trial was ordered by the Missouri Supreme Court today for a Cape Girardeau family who sought $37,500 in damages from Townes cadillac-Oldsmobile dealer in Cape Girardeau.

Billy Gene and Carolyn Wills charged that a Townes car, driven by salesman Rober McClary, struck a bicycle ridden by their son, Danny Gene Wills, now 11, on July 23, 1969.

Danny was seriously injured and medical expenses totaled $10,000, the Wills' petition said.

The salesman had returned from a vacation at Lake Taneycomo, driving a Townes Cadillac-Oldsmobille car. When the accident occurred, he was driving to a funeral home because a relative had died. The car company said McClary was not engaging in any business when the accident occurred, although McClary did perform his salesman's duties at all hours.

The circuit court ruled in favor of the car dealer.

The Supreme Court opinion said a general manager for the company had testified in a proceeding before the circuit court trial that McClary was acting in the employment of the Townes company.

"The car itself was for sale and in the control of a salesman who had the duty

Poyner jailed on assault charges

Jerry Lynn Poyner, 1332 W. Murray Lane, was in city jail this morning charged with assault and battery, destruction of private property, and assault with a deadly weapon.

He was arrested at 2:35 a.m. after he allegedly attacked a woman and assaulted Charles Meyer, 914 Sikes, with a broken cue stick. Meyer was treated at Missouri Delta Community Hospital for cuts and bruises.

Meyer stopped a policeman near the International Shoe Co. factory and told him that Poyner had assaulted him.

Police went to 232 S. Main St. where the alleged assault took place. Upon arrival, police heard a

Dexter to vote on abolishing marshal post

DEXTER-- Voters will have an opportunity to abolish the elective office of city marshal on April 3, but the office would not be officially abolished until May 6, 1974, when the present marshal's term expires.

The plan, adopted by the City Council Monday night, calls for the issue to be on a special ballot at the regular city election on April 3.

Most Dexter councilmen and Mayor Willis Conner have thought for many months that the head of the police department should be an appointive office. The office is presently held by Clay Baker.

Conner pointed out to the council that nearly all cities the size of Dexter or larger have appointive chiefs of police. Under the usual procedure, he pointed out, the City Council and the mayor appoint the chief of police, who, in turn, recommends men to be hired as policemen.

Under the present plan in Dexter, the city marshal gains his office by vote of the people, and the city government cannot exercise any measure of control over his duties. However, the council does hire the other policemen and has control over activities.

This sort of system results in "divided control" and "divided responsibility," it was pointed out.

Norton accusers must 'be specific'

NEW MADRID — Circuit Court Judge William Ragland Friday issued a preliminary writ of mandamus to four people bringing charges against Harold Norton, education director of the Delta Area Head Start program.

The writ orders the four to appear in court on Feb. 27 with the answers to 10 questions asked by the judge, or to show cause why they should not answer the questions.

Ragland said he will decide at that time whether to dismiss or proceed with the case.

The writ was issued to C. B. Ratchford, president of University of Missouri; R. H. Bezoni, university comptroller; Carl N. Scheneman, vice president of the university extension service; and Glenn Patton of Charleston, area extension director and acting director of the Delta Head Start program.

The university extension division recommended Norton's removal. The recommendation was accepted Jan. 29 by the Head Start policy committee.

Patton in recommending the dismissal, told the committee that Norton had failed to follow the directives of the Head Start director.

The court hearing on his removal, originally set for Wednesday, has been postponed, and the four men are ordered to present specific charges against Norton. The charges are to be in writing and delivered to Norton at least 15 days before the rescheduled date of the hearing.

The 10 questions the judge presented in the writ require:

The four to state specifically what actions Norton performed or failed to perform in violation of directives of the Head Start director and area extension director.

State specifically what directives Norton failed to follow.

Give the dates when counseling sessions in this regard were held and names of persons present.

State in detail what actions Norton performed that resulted in confusion and concern among Head Start staff members and parents of children in the Head Start program in regard to the direction and administration of the program.

State in detail when and where Norton performed the actions.

Give in detail the places where alleged confusion and concern among Head Start staff and parents resulted from Norton's actions regarding the direction and administration and future of the program.

Name the persons among the staff and parents who became confused or concerned as a result of Norton's actions.

Tell what the concern and confusion were among these people concering the direction of the program; tell what confusion and concern was about the administration of the program; tell what confusion and concern was created in regard to the future of the program.

Inquest canceled

The inquest scheduled for 10:30 a.m. today into the shooting death last Wednesday of Miss Carol Alvarez, a 24- year- old Sikeston resident, has been canceled, it was announced today by Gene Nunnelee, Scott County coroner.

Results of residual tests taken on both the young woman and her companion, Jimmy Junior Kaiser of Sikeston, will not be available until a later date.

Miss Alvarez died from a bullet wound in the head. Kaiser, who was with her at the time, told police she shot herself during an argument with him.

Kaiser has been charged with murder in connection with her death.

$46 stolen

A thief took $46 Saturday night from a cash register at Nelson's Texaco Station 114 S. Main St., according to police.

The money was reportedly taken between 6 and 7 p.m.

School installs data system

PORTAGEVILLE — The Portageville unit of New Madrid County R-1 enlarged school district Follow Through Program has installed a modern system of data communications to provide weekly individualized feedback of academic pupil progress to teachers.

Dr. Don Bushell Jr. of the Department of Human Growth and Development at University of Kansas in Lawrence, Kan., is the program's sponsor. Dr. Bushell views the data communications system as a useful tool for providing the teacher with quick, pertinent information related to each child's actual academic progress.

The system is built around an optical mark reading machine manufactured and distributed by Optical Scanning Corporation. The Opscan device electronically reads weekly individual progress reports.

The reports consist of actual pages completed by the children in each subject area. The forms are collected weekly from the classroom teachers by two evaluation clerks and are checked for completeness. The clerks transpose pupil placement from the teacher forms to Opscan data forms.

When the forms are complete, the machine "reads" each form and transmits its information by telephone to the computation center at University of Kansas.

A series of computers receive the information from each classroom and prepare an individual report for each team at the Portageville school. The complete report with its analysis and recommendations is then teletransmitted from the computation center to a waiting teletype machine at the Portageville school. The evaluation clerks deliver the reports as the teams begin their daily staff planning sessions.

These Opscan reports are helpful to teachers in analyzing how current progress compares with the progress of the previous year; how their classes compare with other classes at the same grade level in the same school; and how the data compares with classes at that grade level throughout the country.

When progress lags for a few children at a specific point in the curriculum, teachers need immediate practical suggestions for possible alternatives or approaches. When it becomes clear that a specific change in the daily schedule could improve the operation of the class, the teaching teams can obtain that information immediately.

The Portageville Follow Through Program is in its fifth year of operation. The program began in 1968 with a total of two classrooms and 47 children and expanded to the current 14 classrooms, involving a total of 395 children. The program encompasses kindergarten through third grade.

Portageville Follow Through began the 1972-73 school year implementing the last phase of the program, where it maximized local control and independence. The program opened the term with a one-week workshop where intensive training of classroom personnel was carried on.

Blaine E. Martin, director of Portageville Follow Through, and Mrs. Libby Myracle, supervisor, invite interested people to view the feedback system in operation. Contact the Portageville Follow Through Office, 711 King Ave. P. O. Box 280, for information or date when the communication system is transmitting.

IN THE RIGHT SPOT

"It was somewhat tactless," suggested Lord Leatherland in the House of Lords the other day, that just when Britain is about to enter the European Common Market the Bank of England has issued a five-pound note printed with a portrait of the Duke of Wellington and a picture of British gunners "blowing the French army to blazes" at the Battle of Waterloo in 1815.

Not so, countered Lord Jellicoe on behalf of the government. It was decided to portray an "illustrious British personage" on the new notes and the government was sticking by its figurative guns.

It should, but not just because Wellington was an illustrious Briton.

While a reminder of Napoleon's crushing defeat might possibly offend the sensibilities of nostalgic Frenchmen, nothing could be more appropriate in connection with the Common Market than a tribute to the Iron Duke.

Wellington's victory, and that of Britain's allies, not only smashed Napoleon's dream of empire and freed the continent from the yoke of his dictatorship but showed that Europe could never be united through the domination of one man or one nation.

At long last, Europeans seem to have learned the lessons of the Napoleonic wars and of both World Wars, and the price of nationalistic rivalries. Not through force but only through voluntary, peaceful, cooperation can the true dream of a united Europe be realized.

Britain, too, has learned that she can no longer stand apart from the continent, juggling delicate power balances, but must join it or perish.

The Duke would have approved.

DO AWAY WITH MOTHERHOOD?

Twenty years from now, mothers will be a mere specialty group in the United States, says Jeanne Binstock, a sociologist at the University of Massachusetts.

This state of affairs will not result from the women's liberation movement but from economic factors and technological change, she predicts in an article in, appropriately, The Futurist magazine.

Modern medicine's success in reducing mortality has resulted in an overproduction of people, she explains. Women's lib movements are really a consequence of technological change. They have appeared at the historical moment when a sharp reduction in the occupational group known as mothers is mandatory.

"We are forced to face the fact that if we do not take from women their role of mother and replace it with something else, we will be throttled by the overproduction of babies. We thus face the need to demand that the ancient and honorable occupation of motherhood fall into disrepute, and that women commit themselves to other occupations.

"Women must be 'liberated' to enjoy the fruits of other occupations, whether they want to be or not." (Emphasis hers.)

As a sidelight to this prediction, it is interesting to note that Ralph Nader, whose interests seem to have no limit, predicts that by 1976, the nation's 200th anniversary, "Women will no longer be wearing cosmetics. WE" have ended the high priority we put on that kind of activity."

Don't say you weren't warned, ladies. And gentlemen.

NEW YORK (AP) The winter lull is a good time for self- examination, a good time to check up on whether you are forging ahead or falling behind in your career.

The really ambitious man does this constantly, but no matter how careless or slipshod the life you lead, you need to take a critical look at your life plan at least twice a year — either before or after you see your dentist.

Are you progressing or retrogressing? Here is a simple home test that will give you the answer and save you the trouble and expense of going to a psychiatrist or career counsellor.

You're still climbing the wave of achievement if:

You're such a hero to your valet that he asks you to sign a new page in his autograph album every morning.

When you go away on a trip, your wife still puts in your socks and pajamas little endearing notes such as, "I will always be your girl," and "sleep well tonight, lover boy."

At the other end of the journey, when your mistress unpacks your bag and finds the notes, she gets jealous.

Your name at the head of the list of contributors guarantees the success of any charity drive.

The golf pro at your country club seeks your advice when he finds that his putting games is a bit off.

Yes, sir, the world is your oyster. Keep going the way you are. But how do you tell if you're slipping? You might consider making major changes in your modus vivendi if:

You don't even know what modus vivendi means.

Nobody else in your class shows up the evening you are scheduled to make your first speech in your Dale Carnegie course.

Every morning you have to borrow money from your fellow office worker so you can rush to the bank and make a deposit to cover the check you wrote the day before.

When you go into your favorite bar, the bartender you are too cheap to tip turns to another customer and says in a loud stage whisper, "Look who's here — Mr. Bad News himself."

After reading this column, you sit and brood about who could possibly have told me about you.

RELIEF NEEDED NOW

The railroads have asked for an immediate 15 per cent rate increase. Their petition, failed with the Interstate Commerce Commission, says they "... are in desperate need of additional revenues to cope with steeply rising cost levels, impaired earnings and inadequate capital and maintenance programs." Railroad after railroad reports approaching financial crisis.

Dr. Burton N. Behling, Association of American Railroads vice president of economics and finance, has predicted that unless current difficulties are resolved, "time is fast running out on prospects for preserving a viable railroad system able to service the nation's future commerce." In the meantime, as the Report of America's Sound Transportation Review Organization has pointed out, "The technology for reaching a new level of railroad service is available. What is required is the money to bring into being those facilities that will enable the railroads to offer regularity of service." ASTRO puts the capital improvement needs of the rail industry, between now and 1980, at more than $36 billion.

Either these billions will be forthcoming from the voluntary investment of private citizens in support of an industry that is permitted by regulatory authority to earn a fair return, or the taxpayers will assume the burden as part of the astronomical cost of preserving rail service under some form of nationalization -- government ownership. If that should happen, rail rate increases will be imposed just as they are imposed by the Post Office and such agencies as The Tennessee Valley Authority. And the Congressmen who now profess "outrage" at the rail request for tariffs that may spell a life or death difference to the railroads will fall silent.

As heavy taxpayers and providers of a vital transport service, the railroads, under private ownership, should be encouraged now, not tomorrow when it is too late, to get on with the task of meeting the expanding transport needs of a growing nation.

MANAGED INCOME

The U. S. Chamber of Commerce has completed a new study of 1,115 firms which traces the growth of fringe benefits. The findings are startling. This year, these benefits will cost employers a staggering $125 billion, an average of more than $40 per week per employee. And the amount employers pay for extra benefits is continuing upward almost twice as fast as wages and salaries.

On the average, for every $4 received by a worker in cash, his employer shells out an average of $1 for benefits. Since 1959, these benefits have soared into the stratosphere. Social security has increased 200 per cent, insurance 128 per cent, workmen's compensation 93 per cent, profit- sharing payments 87 per cent, paid holidays 76 per cent and so on. The truth is that taxation and fringe benefits, when combined with inflation, are removing the discretionary spending ability of most U. S. citizens. Their income is "managed" by government and other agencies beyond their control.

HOW FAR?

One of the most disturbing questions facing a large corporation today is, "How far can or should a company go in responding to new social problems?" In a special issue of a company publication, a large food processing concern reviews what it is doing and offers suggestions that may provide guidelines for the policies and programs of other companies.

Entitled "Commitment", the magazine starts off by making the irrefutable point that "profits still count." When there is no profit, there is no business. But, beyond the necessity of profits, the company's publication stresses the equally unavoidable necessity of company concern in other matters involving consumer protection, education, job training, poverty, malnutrition, race and the environment – in short, everything that today has become so critical to the goal of achieving a better American tomorrow. In answering the question of "how far?" it can go in the area of social responsibility, this particular expertise or particular concern. In this way, we will not dissipate our energy and resources in fields where others are better equipped to make a contribution." For example, it, like other companies in the food field as well as government agencies, has tackled the problem of malnutrition. It feels it has found the answer -- a food packed with protein and vitamins nutritious enough to grace the tables of the rich, yet producible for mere pennies from readily available raw materials.

The good works of this food company and other social undertakings of business do not spring solely from altruism. As a company official observes, "It is self-evident that a society in turmoil cannot provide a profitable marketplace for the purveyors of any goods or services." The very fact that many businesses are approaching social problems in a similar manner -- from the standpoint of practical economics -- provides the best evidence that substantial progress will be made.

The Freedom To Be Irresponsible; Freedom to Act Like A Child

Freedom is becoming a much abused word, as well as a misunderstood word. It has been grabbed as the ultimate by irresponsible and undisciplined persons to cover their irregular habits and as a license to do as they please.

Neither freedom nor liberty carry a license to violate laws, to go unwashed, to be a phoney, to trample the rights of others. Those exercising these privileges may be charitably classified as undisciplined persons.

Undisciplined persons are always getting into trouble because they do as they please, without regard to the rights of others or serious consequences. Their habits are irregular even to sleeping, eating and working. The undisciplined son may decide he wants a bath but not a haircut when the family is at the dinner table. Another type of undisciplined person goes to a bar and sits there telling stories until it closes, while his family wonders what happened to him.

Undisciplined people are unable to curb their appetites so they become the chain smokers, the sleeping pill users and the drug addicts. The child who refuses to conform to convention at home will not improve when he goes to school.

The "black sheep" that the undisciplined person becomes is the person who fails to find satisfaction in work, in home life, and who is unable to get along in society in general. He is frustrated and resents efforts to help him and soon sours on humanity in general because they are all against him. He is in the unenviable position of the soldier, who was the only one in his company out of step. They become the "all out of step but Jim's of the world.

Unfortunately most of these out- of-step people think they are free, and in this new found freedom which they think they have discovered, they flaunt conventional behavior.

If we were to accept their thinking then we, too, would want this freedom, because it would make for a happy life. But in fact none of them are free, and none of this tripe have liberty. They are bound by hidden chains that cramp their every movement and in their struggles they have alienated those who would be friends and those who would have been stepping stones to happiness and success.

The freedom to be undisciplined by actual example and not philosphy, leads to frustration, bitterness and oblivion.

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Jack Anderson

JACK ANDERSON SAYS:
Documenting a Frame

WASHINGTON — Press spokesman Ron Ziegler has described as "wrong, wrong, wrong," our report that the White House has instructed the Justice Department to "nail" us.

We will be happy, if Ziegler is wrong, to accept President Nixon's apology for jailing Les Whitten. It remains a fact, meanwhile, that Whitten was arrested and his notes ripped out of his hand while he was covering a story for this column. We also have evidence that his arrest was a setup.

He was charged with possessing stolen documents and converting them to his own "use and gain." But here's the real shocker. The FBI knew the charges were false before its agents pounced on him. Here are the facts, which we can now document:

For weeks, Indian leader Hank Adams had been trying to arrange the return of the documents that the Indians had taken from government files. He had managed to secure a few papers and other stolen items, which he turned over to the FBI. Agent Dennis Hyten signed a receipt for them on December 11.

Yet after the January 31 FBI raid on Adams' apartment, Hyten signed the criminal complaint, charging him with possessing stolen documents. Our FBI informants say the FBI was really laying for us and timed the raid to catch Whitten in the net.

TV Film Tells All

Adams' role as the negotiator, merely trying to return the stolen documents to the government, was well known. The respected Indian writer Vine Deloria, author of "We Talk, You Listen," and "Custer Died for Your Sins," told us all the Indians involved in the theft knew Adams wanted to return everything.

There is pictorial evidence that the FBI's undercover man, John Arellano, who was listening as Adams spoke.

Boyajian read us Adams' exact words from the transcript: "We have some information on the nature of the documents that were taken and know that these documents also will be returned in a short period of time. And then the government will continue to lie. They'll say, you know, they weren't really returned or some were still missing."

Indians Remember

The incident is also recalled by two prominent Indian journalists, Richard LaCourse and Tom Cook, who were present. "Johnny (the FBI undercover man) was only four feet from Hank when he was talking about getting the things back," said LaCourse. Cook also recalled Adams' words.

This evidence of the FBI's duplicity is supported by massive additional documentation about Adams' innocent role as the middle man trying to persuade his more militant Indian colleagues to give back the stolen papers. From the White House on down, Adams spoke to government officials about retrieving and returning documents. Here are just a few of the witnesses who are available:

--A few weeks after the documents were taken last November, Los Angeles Times reporter Paul Houston spoke with Adams. Houston remembers that Adams gave him a large manila envelope to mail. Houston recalls clearly that it was addressed to the FBI with Adam's return address. The FBI knew, obviously, that the enclosed documents came from Adams.

--A New York Times story, featured prominently, reported that Adams told a press conference on December 8 that the Indian papers would be returned "as fast as is humanly possible," after they had been copied for the edification of the tribes.

--By January 11, Adams had dropped the idea of waiting for the documents to be copied. He told a National Press Club conference, as also reported by the New York Times, that he "would personally endeavor to obtain and return" the stolen documents. He set an outside target date of February 10.

--On January 24, the communications director of the Bureau of Indian Affairs, Tom Oxendine, wondering whether to start reconstructing certain BIA files, asked Adams whether he still hoped to get the documents back by mid-February. Adams, as quoted by Oxendine, said: "It's in the process of happening."

--On January 29, Adams personally informed Jane Wales of the Congressional Quarterly that he hoped to have the documents back at least by February 10. She published the tip in CQ's highly-respected "News Features" report for editors two days later.

On January 31, even as CQ was informing editors of the imminence of the papers' return, Adams had a 10 a.m. appointment at BIA with Dennis Creedon, an investigator for the House Approporiations Subcommittee. Adams planned to turn over the documents to Creedon, though he did not inform Creedon of his plans. Thirty minutes before the arrest, Adams called Creedon to say he was "on the way."

FBI Knew Truth

Certainly, the FBI agents, who had been scurrying all over the country in a futile search for the Indian documents, read the press accounts and their own informer's reports on Adams' activities. They knew Adams was trying to collect the stolen documents from Indians around the country and return them to the government. Yet the FBI arrested the innocent negotiator, Hank Adams, after the first large stash of stolen documents reached him.

Their real object, of course, was to nail Whitten, who had persuaded Adams to let him witness the return of the documents as a reporter. Whitten, of course, had no part in stealing the documents and at no time possessed them.

Then what was his crime? He was interprising enough to track down the documents that the embarrassed FBI couldn't find. He extracted the news from several documents and wrote the saga of the Broken Treaties Papers for our column.

Our stories told how the Nixon Administration, like those that preceded it, had cheated and neglected the Indians. We reported that the Indians wrongfully had stripped government files. But we also laid out evidence from the papers that the government had helped white exploiters to steal the Indians' water rights, mining claims and other resources.

Whitten is guilty only of embarrassing the Nixon Administration. The White House, apparently, would like to make this a crime.

Sometimes I feel I'd like to object to a TV commercial. How can I find out what agency prepared the commercial?

You can write or telephone your objection to the television station and it will be forwarded to the agency. The same procedure is recommended for misleading advertising on radio, or in newspapers and magazines.

Isn't there a law that punishes businesses that advertise items at low prices and then try to sell consumers a more expensive model?

This is called "bait and switch" advertising which is considered a deceptive practice and should be reported to the Better Business Bureau or other consumer protection agencies in your area.

Does the purchase price of a mobile home include furnishings?

Yes, the basic home furnishings including carpeting, curtains and draperies, furniture, kitchen and heating appliances, freight charges, plus the cost of setting the home on the site are usually included in the purchase price.

Is it true that book clubs have been outlawed? If so, when did the law go into effect?

New regulations have been proposed by the Federal Trade Commission to regulate sales plans often used by book and record companies. The regulation does not outlaw this method of selling.

What kinds of products must be packaged in child resistant packages?

All packages for aspirin and all packages for products containing aspirin — powder preparations, suppositories, chewing gum, effervescent tables and cold pills - and like medications are included in the requirement.

DANGERS IN LEGALIZING MARIJUANA

The Consumers Union recently published a 623- page study on drugs, in which it calls for immediate repeal of all federal and state laws governing the growing, sale, possession and use of marijuana, on the grounds that is is basically harmless.

A great many experts would disagree. Professor William Paton of Oxford University found that frequent use of marijuana is physically dangerous. Harmful substances accumulate in the body, which may cause miscarriages and liver damage.

Dr. Harold Kolansky and Dr. William Moore, psychiatrists from Philadelphia, have found that psychological damage accompanies the physical harm. They believe that frequent use of marijuana may eventually produce brain damage.

Dr. Harvey Powelson, director of the University of California at Berkeley's student psychiatric clinic for five years, initially supported the legalization of marijuana. But in his observations of the young people who came to his clinic, he discovered that continual use of the drug for more than six months could lead to changes "similar to those seen in organic brain diseases-- islands of lucidity intermixed with areas of loss of function."

Dr. Hardin Jones, assistant director of the Donner Laboratory at the University of California at Berkeley, and Dr. Olay Braenden, director of the United Nations Narcotics Laboratory, have also pointed out the harmful effects of marijuana.

The Consumers Union study does not so much as menion any of these authorities. Before any steps are taken to legalize marijuana, the conclusions of these experts should be taken into full consideration, along with the experience of law enforcement officers that heroin addicts usually start on marijuana. White House Strategy:
Nixon- Shultz Team Decide No Intervention In Even Most Massive Strike Crises

By Victor Riesel

WASHINGTON— Legend has it that during a crippling 1969 waterfront strike, with much of the nation in an uproar, the ex- Marine officer, 52- year- old George Shultz, then Secretary of Labor, now Practically assistant president, ordered bananas in a New York restaurant. This spot was not far from the paralyzed wharfs.

Shultz, today's home- front Kissinger, thus proved that imported perishables were still available. Therefore, he said, it is easy to exaggerate the impact of a crippling strike. Later he did an analysis of three such longshoremen hangups--- and said there was no evidence that the economy was permanently injured, or profits or employment.

Secretary of the Treasury Shultz, who aside from the President truly controls the entire governmental- Cabinet infrastructure, believes in the free play of the free market.

That's why there was no White House intervention in the long 1969 dock strike. And this explains why the White House moved scarcely at all to stop the Penn- Central strike. Basically, President Nixon wants no confrontation with labor. Counselor Shultz always has said let them battle among themselves on the strike front--- a sort of home- front version of Mr. Nixon's Asian policy.

From the earliest days of the administration the President has been advised by Shultz to let management and labor settle things among themselves. If the Penn- Central walkout and the White House's refusal to intervene are precedents-- there's significance, indeed, in what happened behind the scenes.

The President approved Shultz's policy and the assistant president passed it on to the new Secretary of Labor, Peter Brennan, who spoke to the outgoing Assistant Secretary Bill Usery (scheduled to go over to the Mediation Services). Also informed were labor's friends, Sen. Pete Williams of New Jersey, head of the Labor Committee, and New York Sen. Jack Javits.

Thus the White House threw the ball to Congress though it was reported that Ford and Chrysler would have to shut down in a week, the railroad might never again function as a private company or a unit, and grain shippers were alarmed and fuel grew scarcer.

Though even Henry Ford II personally urged President Nixon to step into the crisis, the White House also dispatched word to Congress it wanted no end- the- strike legislation. President Nixon and Secretary Shultz respect Mr. Ford and other industrialists. But their private messages to the congressional leaders were--- do what you want.

"The ball is in Congress's court," one of Mr. Nixon's intimates told a caller some hours after the Penn- Central went silent as 26 unions respected the United Transportation (AFL— CIO— UTU) pickets. "They will have to decide on their own. We aren't taking the initiative on anything except the routine efforts of Bill Usery. We aren't asking for any money for the line. We don't want to get into another Lockheed loan vise. We won't force anything which costs money."

This was a snorting difference to one Penn- Central trustee's warning that failure to get a $600 million to $800 million federal loan would kill the line.

And from one source close to both the President and Pete Brennan came the following: "This is not a labor dispute. This railroad has been facing liquidation. This isn't a labor-management clash. This is an economic problem. The whole thing has been blown way out of proportion. The President doesn't want congressional action on this one on a straight- away strike basis. This must not be discussed as a labor battle.

"And that old 'Crippling Strikes' Emergency proposal won't be reconsidered."

This was said though Michigan Sen. Robert P. Griffin, assistant Republican leader, warned that not only the auto industry was threatened but that "steel" would be shut down, too, by a week's Penn- Central paralysis.

The significance in all this lies in the united Nixon- Shultz determination to refuse to intervene in even the most massive labor= management wars. And the coming two years will be studded with them-- in the nation's basic industries.

There will be other nationally traumatic rail crises before the year is over. If the Shultz policy prevails, the nation may be hit by the UTU's selective strike tactics invoked between May 18 and Aug. 2, 1971. At first the union crippled two railroads, then three more and three again and finally two. All very legal, according to the Supreme Court. By August the UTU had some 41 per cent of the nation's rail cargo snarled and stopped.

Shultz's philosophy is-- let the big corporations stand up and fight; let the unions know the companies will stand up. Let the message get to the eager- beaver rank and file. Let both sides know that the White House won't be anybody's business agent as it has been since Franklin Roosevelt. Let Congress do what it wishes. But the White House people won't run interference for anybody.

It could be a rough go. But that's what "Doc" Shultz is prescribing-- bananas with crises.

Flood fight to be held

MEMPHIS — A flood fight exercise will be held Feb. 20-21 along the Mississippi River from St. Louis to New Orleans.

The exercise, which will be directed by the Lower Mississippi Valley Division (LMVD) headquartered in Vicksburg, is to test flood control techniques and emergency communications networks.

Maj. Gen. C. C. Noble, who is both division engineer and president of the Mississippi River Commission, points out that the exercise is being held following a period of unusually high stages.

"During the month of December," he notes, "the mean stage at St. Louis was five feet higher than normal, and at Cairo, the mean stage was higher than during the Decembers preceding the 1927 and 1937 floods. At both Vicksburg and New Orleans, the mean stages were the highest recorded for the month since 1919."

Noble adds that he is hopeful that the valley will have a sustained period of dry weather to provide opportunities to release water stored in flood control lakes and to lower river stages.

"This would make room for spring thaws and rains," he continues, "and avert any serious problems in the Mississippi Valley. However, we will be prepared for any emergency, and this month's flood fight exercise is a part of this preparation."

During the exercise, staffs at LMVD headquarters and at district offices in St. Louis, Memphis, Vicksburg and New Orleans will be working together to control "a rampaging river." Messages will be dispatched advising of problems and solutions, contact with other federal agencies and with state and local governments will be simulated, and stockpiles of emergency supplies will be located.

"We will be doing just about everything except sending work crews to the river," Noble comments. "We hope to have local levee boards and other agencies actively participating to further develop our co- ordination and feeling of teamwork. It's been more than 20 years since we have had a major flood on the Lower Mississippi River, and we have to be sure we are ready for the next one"

Commodity bill considered

JEFFERSON CITY — The Senate Committee on Agriculture, Conservation, Parks and Tourism has approved a bill by Sen. Nelson B. Tinnin, D-Hornersville, to update and clarify the commodity merchandising law passed in 1969.

Since that time, the producers of peaches, apples, eggs and turkeys have elected to come under the bill, with the producers approving a check- off system to finance research and promotion of their products.

The latest bill clarifies the provisions for petitions, hearings and the actual referendum on a commodity merchandising proposal. Tinnin said it also gives the state commissioner of agriculture more latitude in administering the law.

By an amendment, the committee eliminated cattle producers, many of whom objected to coming under the law.

Under the existing law, at least 200 producers may petition for permission to establish a commodity merchandising council.

Fight For Life

Many people have called and written to this office asking "WHAT CAN WE DO NOW?" The United States Supreme Court, in a 7-2 decision, ruled that all criminal restrictions on the practice of abortion must be removed. This decision requires our IMMEDIATE attention and action. The decision allows abortion on request.

A. DEADLINE FEBRUARY 16TH!!!!!!!!!!!

Unknown to many in the pro-life movement, the decision handed down by the Supreme Court will NOT BECOME FINAL until 25 days after the decision was made (January 22, 1973). The 25 days run continuously and include weekends. During this period of time, the parties to the litigation (i.e. the Attorney Generals of Georgia and Texas) may petition the Court to rehear the case and the Court may accept the petition and, as a result, call back their BLACK MONDAY decision. Indications are that such a petition will not be filed and/or will not be accepted by the Court unless overwhelming public pressure is applied to the parties involved. Therefore:

1. The Attorneys General of Georgia and Texas must be asked to petition for this rehearing.
2. The U. S. Supreme Court must be asked to accept such a petition.
3. Both may be accomplished by placing great pressure upon the Attorneys General and the Court in the following ways:

a. The Attorneys General of every state in the union must be asked to personally petition the attorneys general of Georgia and Texas. This can best be accomplished through personal contact with your own attorney general, as well as letters to him urging him to be party to the request for rehearing.

Write or call:
Attorney General John Danforth
Jefferson City, Mo. 65101

b. A letter writing campaign (telegrams or nightletters too) must be directed toward the attorneys general of Georgia and Texas and to the U. S. Supreme Court to mount public pressure for a rehearing.

GEORGIA:
Arthur K. Bolton
Attorney General
c/o State Capitol
Atlanta, Georgia 30334

TEXAS:
Crawford C. Martin
Attorney General
c/o State Capital
Austin, Texas 76011

4. Write to the Justices of the U. S. Supreme Court. In that the court has ignored the public briefs submitted before them on behalf of the unborn child and in that the Court has perpetrated one of the greatest injustices ever, direct personal appeals to the Court are in order. Ask questions of decisions. Ask the Justices to reconsider the issue immediately. Write:

The Honorable Warren E. Burger (Dear Mr. Chief Justice)
The Honorable Harry A. Blackmun The Honorable William J. Brennan, Jr.
The Honorable William Orville Douglas, The Honorable Thurgood Marshall
The Honorable Lewis F. Powell, The Honorable William H. Rehnquist,
The Honorable Potter Stewart, The Honorable Raymond White.

Address for all of the Supreme Court Judges:
The Honorable (full name)
Justice of the Supreme Court
U. S. Supreme Court
Washington, D. C. 20543
(Remember that Associate Judges Byron White and William Rehnquist are sympathetic to our position)

B. IMMEDIATE ACTION REGARDING A CONSITUTIONAL AMENDMENT

If our efforts to overturn the present BLACK MONDAY DECISION should fail, then the next step will be the establishment of a constitutional amendment which would protect the right to life of everyone -- the young, the old, the born and the unborn, the wanted and the unwanted (a total life amendment).

At this point, great pressure in support of such an amendment must be implemented immediately. The time to act is now, when the public is in such strong support of our efforts. This can be accomplished in the following ways:

1. Write or call the President of the United States asking him to repudiate the Supreme Court decision and to support a constitutional amendment protecting all human life. President Nixon is due to deliver his State of the Union message very shortly and we should specifically ask that he announce his support of such an amendment at that time. Also, encourage him to issue a stay on the decision by executive order (e.g. Emancipation Proclamation).

Write to:
The President (Dear Mr. President:)
The White House
Washington, D.C. 20500

2. Write your Congressman/Senator (Phone, telegram, visit if in town)

a. Our main concern now is that Congressman Senators speak out against the Supreme Court decision.

Ann Landers

'House devils and Street angels' are grown-ups, too

Dear Ann Landers: I was inspired to write this letter when I read the comments of the complaining mother who said her teenage daughter is "charming, gracious, sweet and easy- going-- everywhere but at home."

I am no longer a teen- ager-- I am 20 now-- but I would like to cite the problem in reverse. It's my mother who is charming, gracious, sweet and easy- going-- to everyone except her immediate family. At home she is forever griping, complaining, criticizing, and acting all- around obnoxious. This is not my imagination, Ann. My father and brothers are also aware of her split personality.

So please publish my letter and give a daughter-- Equal Time

Dear Equal: "Split personalities" are not the private property of teen- age daughters or their mothers. Two- faced behavior can be found in husbands, sons-- any person who reserves his most charming personality for outsiders. I call these people "house devils and street angels." Thanks for writing.

Dear Ann Landers: Neither you nor V.F. in Washington did much to advance the cause for women's rights.

Did you know that if a woman is raped on a dark street in New York she cannot press charges unless she has a witness who will testify in court that she was forcibly overcome? In New York, the courts assume that a raped woman tantalized or seduced the male unless she can prove other wise.

In some states, if a husband comes home and finds a man in bed with his wife he can shoot them both. This is considered a "passion shooting." If a woman catches her husband in bed with another woman and shoots them she is charged with murder.

So don't come crying to us Women's Libbers for help, Ann, when your husband beats you or refuses to give you money. Or when your women friends desert you because you were too pro- male to help their cause.--- J.S. and T.V. of N.Y.

Dear J.S. And T.V.: I am neither pro- nor anti- Women's Lib. I am strongly in favor of women getting salaries and promotions commensurate with their ability. I am against discrimination based on color, creed or sex.

I am, however, opposed to loud- mouthed dames who try to push their way into all- male clubs where they are not welcome. Men do not belong every place-- and neither do women.

Dear Ann Landers: This letter is a rebuttal to "Lived Through It." The reader felt that when someone has lost a loved one, real friends should ask, "Is there anything we can do to help?"

Sorry, I don't agree. Real friends don't ask. They know what they can do to help. They can prepare food that can be easily served or put in a freezer. They can provide transportation for relatives. They can take the small children for a few days. They can be on hand to answer the phone. They can meet family and friends at the airport and offer a spare room to house them. The ways to held a friend in time of trouble are countless. All one needs is a genuine interest. True friends don't ask questions. They go ahead and do what needs to be done. The person who says, "Please call me if I can do anything," is mouthing a polite phrase.--- Been There Myself

Dear B.T.M.: Thank you for a no- nonsense, lay- it- on- the- line approach to a very real problem. I couldn't have responded better myself. In fact, I didn't.

Got those wedding bell blues over costs. . .guest list. . .what to wear. . .and other details; Ann Landers' completely new "The Bride's Guide will help. For a copy, send a dollar bill, plus a long, self- addressed, stamped envelope (16c postage) to Ann Landers, Box 3346, Chicago, Ill. 60654

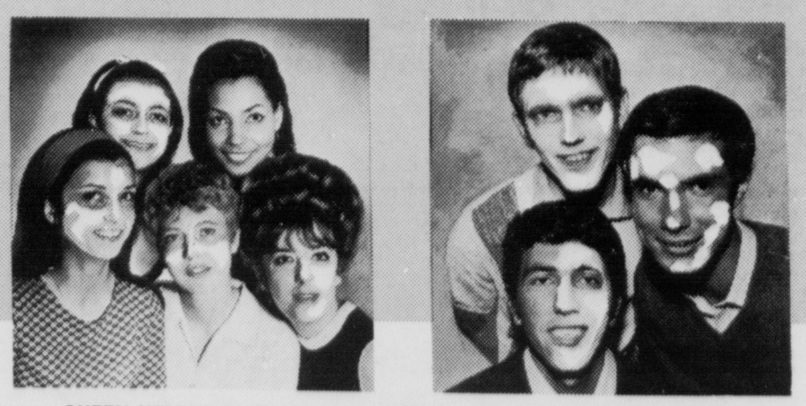
RINSES AWAY BLACKHEADS
HELPS DRY UP ACNE-PIMPLES . . .



QUEEN HELENE MINT JULEP MASQUE 15 MINUTE HOME TREATMENT
MUST SHOW IMMEDIATE IMPROVEMENT OR — YOUR MONEY BACK!
A leading New York Doctor, working with a cosmetic laboratory, has developed a simple home treatment that rinses away blackheads, helps dry up acne pimples, and shrinks enlarged pores. The name of this medicated product is QUEEN HELENE MINT JULEP MASQUE. Apply this delightfully Mint-Scented Cream and within 2 or 3 minutes an absorbing agent called Argilla, dries and turns this cream into a plastic-like masque. You will now feel as though hundreds of "tiny fingers" are kneading the skin, loosening pore-caked dirt, blackheads, and other foreign impurities. As it firms and hardens, its suction action draws out waste matter from the pores. . . In 15 minutes you simply rinse the masque away with lukewarm water which dissolves it immediately. When you wipe your face, you can see that blackheads and other pore "filler" actually come off on your wash cloth. And your skin feels clean . . . really clean . . . refreshed, smooth like velvet. Women 35 and over will enjoy the skin tightening experience as the masque relaxes tired facial muscles and eases tension lines on face and throat. If you suffer the agony of blackheads, acne-pimples, and enlarged pores, give yourself this home treatment and see the breath-taking results. Ask for it by name, QUEEN HELENE MINT JULEP MASQUE.

RETURNING VIETNAM WAR POWs will be received at 31 Army, Air Force and Navy hospitals scattered around the United States. Returnees will first go through a 10-day treatment and debriefing period at Clark Air Force Base in the Philippines after their release by North Vietnam, then be sent to one of the 31 hospitals where they will be reunited with their families. As far as possible, each man will be sent to the hospital of his service which is nearest his hometown.

Job outlook better for college grads

ST. LOUIS (AP)--A recent survey of job placement directors at several Missouri colleges showed that the job outlook for graduates was getting brighter --if only slightly.

Placement directors indicated that although fewer recruiters are visiting campuses now than in the 60s, the recruiters are looking for more people this year than in the last three or four years.

Leo A. Eason, Washington University placement director, said prospects for students with training in banking and accounting are especially bright.

"Recruiters from Chicago and New York Banks talk about real growth," he said.

Dr. Anton Brasunas, associate dean of engineering at the University of Missouri-Rolla, said the job market in engineering is good too with the demand for engineering graduates at least 25 per cent higher than last year.

Brasunas even predicted that engineering students graduating in four years will have at least five offers apiece.

And backing up that claim was E. A. Siegerest, secretary of the Engineers Club of St. Louis, who said layoffs in the aerospace industry have caused some to underestimate the future in the engineering field.

Siegerist said 48,000 new engineers are needed yearly, but at present college enrollment rates there will only by 32,000 yearly by 1975.

Joseph H. Palmer, the University of Missouri-St. Louis placement director, added that graduates with part-time or summer experience in their fields will have an inside track for jobs.

Lakewood, Colo. officials have banned residents from keeping bears, or other wild animals on their premises.

Nixon asks respect

By FRANCES LEWINE
Associated Press Writer

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (AP) — President Nixon says the best way for the nation to welcome the American prisoners of war being released in Vietnam is "with quiet respect for their fortitude in the ordeal that is now ending for their privacy in the time ahead."

Nixon kept a close watch Sunday on developments relating to the first release of U.S. prisoners since the Vietnam cease-fire. After he was informed Sunday night that the airlift of prisoners from North Vietnam had begun, the Western White House issued this presidential statement:

"As the first group of Americans held as prisoners of war in Vietnam arrives home, the whole nation would like to be there to welcome them back to the country they have served so well.

"Let us remember, however, that this moment belongs above all to the returning men themselves and to the families waiting to welcome them. We can join most fittingly in that welcome, not with fanfare, but with quiet respect for their fortitude in the ordeal that is now ending and for their privacy in the time ahead.

"On the Veterans Administration Building in Washington are the words of Abraham Lincoln, whose birthday we are about to observe, reminding us of our obligation 'to care for him who shall have borne the battle.' Let us mark this special Sunday with a prayer of thanks for all who have borne this battle — and have made peace with honor possible. And let us resolve anew to be worthy of the sacrifices they have made."

The presidential statement reiterated an appeal Nixon made earlier Sunday after attending services at Palisades United Methodist Church in Capistrano Beach: "After what they've been through, they deserve some time to themselves, and they should not be exploited."

He suggested that all Americans — townspeople planning homecoming welcomes, officials at the Clark Field Evacuation Center in the Philippines and the press — let the POWs alone as they are reunited with their families and readjust to freedom.

The President told reporters outside the church that he had no plans to see any of the returning POWs.

"Let's let them see their families again; and then, if they want to see anybody, the secretary of defense or the President, we will be available," he said.

Lincoln religious in a personal way

By KATHERYN WITHERSPOON

Many people are shocked when they learn President Abraham Lincoln was shot while attending the theater on Good Friday. Others question whether he could have been religious because he never joined a church, he voted to keep the legislature in session on Christmas, and he dated many official letters Dec. 25

But these people are attempting to judge Lincoln out of the context of his time and they are wrong when they think he was not religious say: Dr. Elton Trueblood, well-known theologian and author. He makes these points in his new book, "Abraham Lincoln Theologian of American Anguish," published by Harper & Row.

"Lincoln's almost total inattention to the conventional Christian calendar is more understandable when we realize his practice was consistent with the general cultural pattern of his time," Dr. Trueblood states. "In some church circles genuine pride was taken in the refusal to make a distinction between days, on the ground that all days should be equally holy. Lincoln appears to have felt this way to the end, and in this he was truly a man of the people."

Even Christmas was not widely emphasized in earlier America as it is today, the author says, and 100 years ago schools were sometimes conducted at Christmas, precisely as on other days.

"The President's lack of church membership was something which he shared with the great majority of his fellow citizens," writes Dr. Trueblood. "Only 25 per cent of Americans were church members in 1860, the year he was first elected President."

It would seem natural in light of today's customs for Lincoln to have joined the Pigeon Creek Church as a boy, particularly when he served as sexton for the meeting house D. Trueblood writes.

"We get new perspective however, when we learn that in the pioneer churches few young people were accepted into membership. Parents who were church members tended to assume the responsibility for the spiritual guidance of their families. People were not expected to apply for membership apart from the contemplation of matrimony. It was because membership was taken seriously that it was normally reserved for maturity."

In most American theological circles, the emphasis on the church is not much more than 60 years in duration, says Dr. Trueblood, and "Abraham Lincoln was following the expected pattern of thought when his religion was centered far more in the Bible than in the church."

In his maturity, Lincoln contrasted what he heard of "man- made creeds and dogmas" with the Bible which he had studied daily since childhood, and "was well aware that not one of the 'creeds or dogmas could be found in the Bible," Dr. Trueblood points out. He quotes Lincoln as saying, "I cannot, wihtout mental reservations, assent to long and complicated creeds and catechisms."

As a youth, with his brilliant mind, Lincoln enjoyed taking different sides on any issue in debates for mental stimulation, and in such exercises for the sake of argument expressed some atheistic views which are wrongly quoted against him as his beliefs, Dr. Trueblood says.

Dr. Trueblood shows that Lincoln constantly prayed, asked others to pray for him, and attended church services, renting pews. The author discusses the classic religious significance of some of the Civil War President's addresses and says Lincoln excelled the leading theologians of his time in thought and expression.

It was Lincoln's religious nature and constant effort to understand the will of God that gave him his "deep moral revulsion toward salvery," says Dr. Trueblood. However, Lincoln was never simplistic and saw all angles to a question, therefore he felt a great sense of responsibility in holding the United States together as a union. As a result, he "has as little sympathy with the instant Abolitionists as he had with the apologists for slavery," the author writes. He sought a way to end slavery without war.

Some who judge Lincoln out of the context of his times tend today to attack him because he did not take quicker direct action to end all slavery, regardless of the union, and because he "never affirmed the factual equality of the races," Dr. Trueblood writes. But factual equality was not the point at issue, the author states. "The question, Lincoln said over and over, is not what a man's particular abilities may be, but what his rights are as a human being made in God's image."

Dr. Trueblood, Professor at Large of Earlham College, spent eight years "immersing" himself in all Lincoln's writings before he started work on the book, which he says he wrote because "We know who the greatest figure is in the American experiment, and we cannot leave him alone."

HOUSELIGHTS SHINE WITH PARTISAN GLOW

JEFFERSON CITY — Richard J. Rabbitt, the new speaker of the Missouri House of Representatives, expects to bring about a lot of changes in that body, but one change he already has made is causing mutterings by unhappy legislators.

The names of he representatives are no longer listed alphabetically on the two massive electronic voting boards in the House, but instead correspond to the seating arrangement on the House floor. Because the seating arrangement is based on party membership, all the Republicans in the House are listed first; followed by the Democrats.

One of the objections to the system was voiced by Rep. Harold Reisch (R-Columbia), who said he finds it difficult to check how someone else is voting. Reisch said finding a particular legislator's name now requires running through the entire list.

But the principle objection to the new listing is not confusion, but as Rep. Robert O. Snyder (R-Kirkwood) said, "It helps to create more partisanship, when our purpose ought to be to get good legislation through regardless of party lines."

Snyder, the minority leader in the House, said the Republicans were not consulted about the switch, and that most GOP representatives don't like the new system. He explained that the system might encourage legislators to vote along party lines because the floor leaders can quickly tell who's out of line with the party vote by checking the board. If there's one green (yes) light in the midst of a whole row of red (no) lights, the name of the man out of line becomes evident quickly. The floor leader can then rush over to where the man is sitting and urge him to change his vote before the Speaker orders the votes locked into place.

In most cases, the 97-66 edge the Democrats hold is not in jeopardy by a close vote, But part of the Speaker's power is his ability to hold the voting board open as long as he wants while his floor lieutenants try to persuade mavericks to go along.

Rep. Reisch also noted that a member might tend to go along with the party line if he had not read the legislation under consideration, and might check the board to see how he should vote.

But the man responsible for the change thinks the division along party lines is helpful. "The arrangement helps with party responsibility on party issues," Rabbitt said. "Of course, 90 per cent of the issues voted on are not party issues, but it's helpful in letting a new member know when an issue is considered a party issue."

Under House rules, the Speaker has responsibility for supervision and direction of the House, and Rabbitt used the broad discretion granted him under the rule to order the change in the voting arrangement. There is no House rule specifically governing how votes are to be taken, and usually when there is no House rule to cover an area, the Missouri General Assembly abides by a body of rules known as Cannon's Law. Cannon's Law states that votes are to be taken alphabetically, leading one Missouri senator to describe the Missouri House as "the only legislative body in the world which votes by party and not by alphabet."

Rabbitt said the House abides by Cannon's Law for basic parliamentary law, and that rules for proceedure are made by the Speaker. He cited two other reasons for the change. "First," he said, "once you have the boardwired according to seats, you don't have to rewire it when the names change, and second, it helps the new members learn other people's names by checking their names on the board against their seat."

Another Rabbitt innovation has brought praise from leaders of both parties. The Speaker is enforcing the House rules more strictly than his predecessors, insisting on quiet and limiting the number of people in the side galleries. The new quiet and spirit of decorum, Rabbitt said, have brought him many compliments.

The new Speaker also has set about trying to improve the per diem expense allowance of House members by introducing a bill to raise the $10 daily allowance to $25, which he calls "more realistic considering the cost of living in Jefferson City." Another bill which Rabbitt is backing would set up an independent commission to review the issue of legislator's pay raises.

Rabbitt said he also would like to see a bill passed to make the Speaker and other officers of the House and Senate full-time employes with commensurate salary increases, and to prohibit them from engaging in the private practice of law or any other job while they held state office.

40 dead in explosion of storage tank

NEW YORK (AP) — The disaster that turned a huge liquid gas storage tank into a fiery tomb for 40 men "was not associated with the storage of the product but with the repairs" under way at the Staten Island installation, Fire Chief John T. O'Hagan says.

O'Hagan's statement Sunday left unanswered the central question: What caused the supposedly empty $31-million tank to erupt in flames Saturday and its 150-foot dome to fall in an avalanche of concrete and steel?

By early today, 26 bodies had been placed in temporary pine coffins and lifted by crane from the soot-blackened pit 61 feet deep. Many were burned beyond recognition.

Firemen with air hammers broke through concrete slabs and chunks of ice overnight in an effort to find 14 others. "Some of the victims are probably under water," a fire captain said.

Opened by Texas Eastern Transmission Corp. in 1970, the 600,000-barrel tank stored natural gas in its more compact liquid state at 260 degrees below zero. The gas was revaporized during peak winter demand periods.

What's the Law?

The case of the sexy defendant

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

Stanley was suing Seena for breach of contract. A charming and sexy looking girl, Seena proved to be a very pleasant adversary, but not to Stanley. On two occasions during the trial the judge caught Seena winking at several different male members of the jury, and on each occasion he admonished her for doing so. In fact, on at least one occasion one of the jurors even sheepishly returned the wink.

When the jury ultimately returned a verdict in favor of Seena, Stanley, fit to be tied, filed an appeal demanding a new trial.

"The only reason I lost," he complained, "was because sexy Seena was flirting with the jury. My case began to sink when she began to wink."

"That's not so," was Seena's answer. "The verdict was in my favor because the facts were in my favor. Besides," she added, "if Stanley wanted a new trail, he should have requested one when the judge admonished me for winking. Now that that trial is over, it's too late to request a new one. He held his peace too long."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you grant Stanley a new trail because of sexy Seena's flirting with the jury?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that the general rule is that unless the conduct of any attorney or his witnesses is such as to impair gravely the calm and dispassionate consideration of the case by the jury, a court is not required to grant a new trial.

In this case, noted the judge, Stanley's failure to request a new trial at the time of Seena's misconduct, which was called to his attention, indicated that he did not think it had irretrievably marred the impartiality of the proceedings. Thus, under the circumstances of the case, he was not entitled to a new trial.

Dear Editor:

The Soviets have their eye on gaining control of Rhodesian chrome ore and South African gold (80% of the world's production). Through their control of the United Nations they forced through sanctions against Rhodesia.

According to "The Forecaster" of September 3, 1972, "As long as they could keep an effective blockade up against Rhodesia, the Soviets were able to sell Soviet chrome to the U.S. at fantastic prices ... The inferior Russian chrome ore was continually being peddled at prices 200%- 300% and sometimes even higher for U.S. dollars. This little tactic alone helped the Soviets gain scarce dollars, and added to the U. S. dollar drain, the U. S. balance of payments deficit. The Soviets got the UN to do the dirty work with the blockade. The Soviets got to peddle inferior chrome ore at fantastic prices to their enemy (the USA) for scarce currency. They further weakened their enemy by weakening its monetary posture and draining its monetary strength. They moved to expand their foothold on the big continent in Africa. There were only two major producers of chrome ore in the world, Rhodesia and the Soviet Union, and the Soviets had succeeded brilliantly in isolating the competition. The USA itself, which demanded great quantities of chrome ore and refined chrome, found itself paying through the nose for this product to its enemy (with Congressional approval). The USA is not self- sufficient in chrome ore production and must depend on the outside world for around 90% of the chrome it needs. That means that, in the event of the outbreak of war, the USA would be dependent upon its greatest enemy, the Soviet Union, for a strategic war material!"

No war can be fought without chrome and gold.

Sincerely,
C. C. Moseley,
President

Prayer for today

from the Upper Room

The path of the just is as the shining light, that shineth more and more unto the perfect day. (Proverbs 4:18)

PRAYER: Dear heavenly Father, through Jesus we have the assurance that Thou wilt lead us gently, step by step, until we learn to walk confidently with Thee by faith. We thank Thee that every day is a time for trusting Thee for all and committing our all to Thee. Help us to make a good beginning this day and to follow through with Christ, in whose name we pray. Amen.

Camping as a national pastime has grown so rapidly within recent years that camping guide editors at Rand McNally estimate that one of every five Americans will spend vacation time in the country's campgrounds and trailer parks during 1973.

Mike Hamrick, with ball, gives referee Bob Johnson a big stare after he was called for charging into a Malden player during the finals of the Dunklin county tournament at Cardwell Saturday night.

Lions, Camels Dunklin Champs

CAMPBELL — Coach Jim Isbell and his Senath - Hornersville Lions won the Dunklin County Tourney championship Saturday night in a 62-56 battle with Malden. Campbell captured the B-team championship in an upset over the Clarkton Reindeer, 33-31.

The Lions, who were seeded first in the tourney, played a consistent game. Herman Brown was high scorer with 18 markers. Kent Waggoner and Larry Davis dumped in 14 and 13 points respectively for the victors.

Scoring remained close during the first quater but Senath was able to slip by the Greenwaves by four points to take an early edge. Malden remained within striking distance of the Lions in second frame action. Both teams were held to 15 points apiece and Senath maintained their lead. At half the score stood at 35-31.

The Greenwaves came back in the third quarter to fall behind the pace set by Senath. Shots were not connecting for Malden and the Lions took advantage taking the ball down court and making their baskets good. Senath was able to hold the lead in the fourth frame to take home a championship win.

Clarance Sherrod hit for 15 points for Malden. Both Jim Robinson and John Townes came up with 13 markers for MHS.

The fourth-seeded Campbell Camels moved up through tourney action to defeat number two-rated Clarkton for a B-team championship victory. Hensen, with 16 points, was high scorer for the winners.

Both teams ran into cold shooting and found their shots falling away. Campbell gained the edge in the first frame by a single point 5-4. Action during the second quarter proved to be slow also. The Reindeers were able to pick up the extra point that the Camels had on them to tie the game at 12-all at halftime.

Clarkton once again had shooting trouble in the third quarter and Campbell was able to move out from the Reindeers by four markers. Playing during the final frame was stepped up somewhat. Clarkton came back and began gaining on the Camels. However, the Reindeers rally fell short and Campbell had the win.

Wilson hit for 12 markers for the Clarkton team.

SHS streak ended, 68-61

MAYFIELD, Ky. — Despite the 30 point performance of Pope Hunt, the Sikeston Bulldogs had their four game win streak snapped Saturday night by the Mayfield Cardinals 68-61.

A slow start, in which the Bulldogs managed only 10 points in the first eight minutes of action, was blamed for the defeat. Mayfield took a seven point, 17-10, lead in the first period and held off numerous late charges by their Missouri visitors to maintain their dominence over the SHS athletic squads. The Cardinals dominated a football series that the schools had going for five years.

Twice in the final eight minutes Coach N.P. McDaniel's hardcourt crew drew to within three points of the host team, but were unable to pull ahead due to floor mistakes at critical points in the contest.

From the outset of the game it was obvious that a great deal of body contact was normal in western Kentucky basketball. This type of play was new to Sikeston and the difficulty in adjusting to this type of play took time.

The Bulldogs outshot their opponents from the floor, 43 per cent to 41 per cent, but were again beaten at the free throw line as Mayfield poured in 16 of 20 charity tosses for an 80 per cent mark compared to Sikeston's 54 per cent average on seven of 13 attempts from the line. The Bulldogs also made 19 floor mistakes as compared to the Cardinals' 13 miscues.

In the opening period Mayfield jumped into an early 17-10 advantage behind forward Wayne Lovelace's eight markers on his first four field goal attempts.

The Bulldogs seemed to be adjusting to the greater amount of body contact in the second quarter, but fell three points farther back to be down 35-24 at intermission.

Action in third frame saw Sikeston come out fired up and outscore the MHS crew 20-14 to narrow the host's lead to a mere four points at the buzzer. Pope Hunt, Sikeston's six- foot- four-inch pivot man, led the charge with 14 points in that period while on his way to a 30 point evening's performance.

At the tip- off to begin fourth quarter action, the Cardinals had seemed to regain their composure as they rebuilt a temprorary 10 point lead before half the final eight minutes had ticked off the clock.

The Sikeston quintet again went to work on narrowing the lead, and were down only three points, 64-61, with just under 90 seconds left in the contest. Mayfield prevailed however, as they poured in four charity tosses in the last minute to ice the game and hand SHS its first loss in five games.

High point honors on the night went to Pope Hunt as he connected on 15 of 26 floor shots for his best game offensively this season. Hunt also pulled off nine rebounds to lead Sikeston in that department. Roy Bowman, who had an outstanding game offensively and defensively, also scored in double figures for the Bulldogs with 12 points.

Bill Hubbard, Mayfield's six- foot- seven- inch center, had 16 points in the second half after being shut off completely in the first half. Larry Sanderson, Keith Pyle, and Wayne Lovelace followed with 15, 13, and 12 points respectively.

Coach Bud Spears' junior varsity dropped the opener to the Mayfield junior squad, 70-39, as the Cardinal jayvees connected on 28 of 41 free throws to keep the game out of reach.

Roger Tillman had high game honors in the B contest with 18 tallies.

Jackson wrestlers to state

Four wrestlers representing Sikeston in the state class L regional wrestling tournament at Horton Watkins high school in Ladue Saturday ran into very tough competition and could not qualify for the state championship wrestle-offs which will be held in Columbia this weekend.

Freshman Scott Hutchison placed fourth in regional competition by beating Dan Abbott of Vianney in 'wrestle- backs' after Hutchison had been beaten by Tom Raney of Normandy, who eventually went on to win the championship in the 112-pound division.

Jim Huff, wrestling in the 119- pound division, was beaten in first action by Tim Banks of University City and by Dennis Elkins of Lafayette in 'wrestle- backs'. Banks, a senior, was state champion in the 105- pound division his sophomore year and also state champ in the 112- pound division last year. He is as well odds-on favorite to win the state championship in the 119-pound division this year.

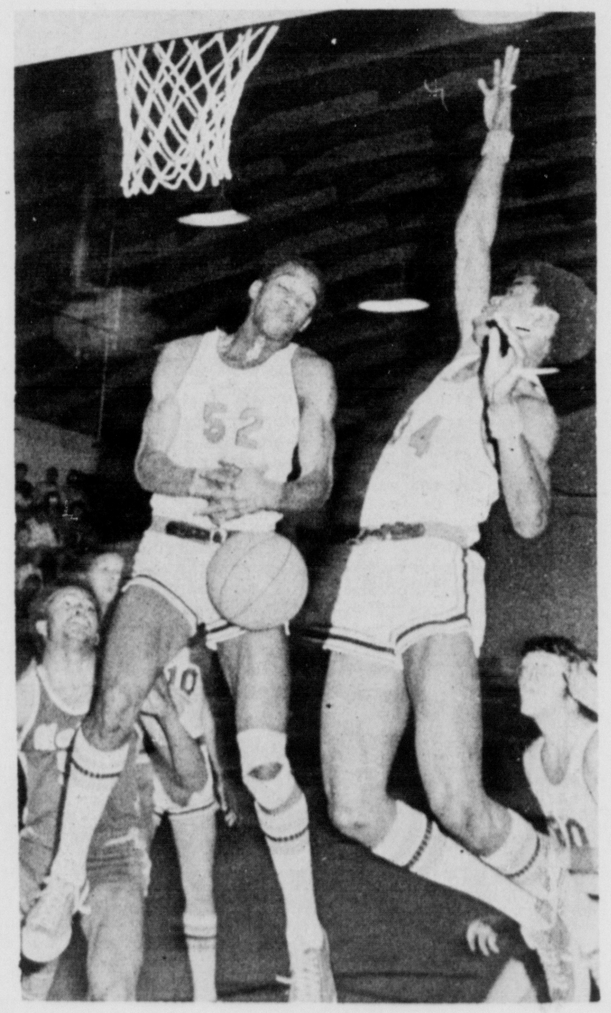
Tom Bridger and Bill Lewis, Sikeston grapplers in the 105- and 132- pound divisions, were eliminated in first round action and were not permitted to 'wrestle-back' because their respective first round opponents, Dan Thomann of Desmit and Mark Beckman of Normandy, had been eliminated from competition.

In class M-S action at Maplewood high school Saturday, Coach Paul Webber's Jackson Indians edged out the host school to win their first regional championship ever.

Three wrestlers from Jackson also qualified for state competition next weekend by virtue of either first or second place finishes in regionals.

The three qualifiers for state wrestle- offs were 98-pounder L. G. Loos, who finished second; 119-pounder Bruce Hoffman, who finished first; and 126-pounder John Wilson, who finished first.

Other wrestlers who finished in regionals but did not qualify for the state championships were 132-pounder David Ramsey, third place; 138- pounder Robert Meyer, third place; 167-pounder Bruce Windeknecht, third place; 185- pounder Pat Malone, fourth place; and heavyweight John Goodson, fourth place.



Which way did it go

Herman Brown (52) seems to be getting pressure from his teammate during championship action of the Dunklin county tournament at Cardwell Saturday night. Brown scored 18 points to lead Senath- Hornersville to the title, defeating Malden.

Mizzou faces stiff tests

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Looking at the three league losses of his Missouri Tigers, Coach Norm Stewart observed last week Mizzou might "have to have some help."

But before the Tigers can worry about who is going to play the spoiler role in a Big Eight basketball race now controlled by Kansas State, they have to help themselves tonight against Oklahoma.

The Sooners helped arrange Missouri's current predicament with a 90-77 upset a week ago at Norman. Another victory tonight in Columbia would shove John MacLeod's young club past the Tigers into third place.

Missouri goes in with a 4-3 league mark to the Sooners' 44. Then the Tigers must travel to meet second-place Colorado, 5-2, Saturday in Boulder.

Colorado steps out of the league to visit Creighton in the only other action involving Big Eight members tonight.

Kansas State took over sole ownership of the Big Eight lead with a strong second-half performance against Colorado Saturday that led to an 81-62 triumph before the first sellout crowd at Boulder in two years.

That boosted the Wildcats, 18th-ranked starting the week, to 6-1 in the Big Eight and 16-3 over-all. The eighth-rated Missourians also are 16-3 and Oklahoma takes a 14-6 total to the Tigers' new fieldhouse.

Kansas State seems to be in good shape to maintain its lofty position, with four of its last seven conference foes scheduled in friendly Ahearn Fieldhouse at Manhattan.

The first of those games is Tuesday night against Kansas. Although the Wildcats already own a 77-68 decision this season over the Jayhawks at Kansas, the Sunflower State rivalry has produced more than its share of surprises.

The Jayhawks could well have been looking ahead to KSU when they stumbled against lowly Nebraska Saturday. The Cornhuskers' 59-46 upset at Lawrence dropped KU to 3-3. Coupled with Oklahoma's 83-78 comeback victory at Oklahoma State Saturday afternoon, it also got Nebraska, 2-5, out of the loop basement and left OSU, 1-6, alone in last place.

Rounding out Saturday night's action, early-season leader Iowa State fell 86-79 victim to Missouri and settled into sixth place at 4-5.

No one was more surprised by the Kansas loss to Nebraska than Jayhawk boss Ted Owens, who had observed prior to the game: "All of the other contenders are beating Nebraska, so it's necessary we do, too."

The Hawks likely will no longer qualify for the contender class if they lose to K-State, and the situation is complicated by the schedule that puts KU on the road for five of its last eight games, including trips to Colorado and Oklahoma after the Kansas State contest.

In pulling away from a 40-38 halftime edge to scorch Colorado, K-State got a career high of 25 points from Lon Kruger. He hit 11 of 11 free throws and Larry Williams went 6 for 6 as the Wildcats, the league's most accurate free throw shooters, converted 23 of 28 charity chances.

In the showdown with K-State, the Buffs lost junior Lee Haven—who was averaging 20.2 against league competition— with an ankle sprain in the early going after he had scored only two points. Colorado had won five straight.

Missouri's Al Eberhard ran his streak of free throws to 27 straight before missing Saturday against Iowa State. Eberhard, described by Stewart as a "low-mistake player," had 19 points and 11 rebounds while John Brown's 24 points led the Tigers.

That was the best scoring effort in six games for Brown, but he remains second to Oklahoma freshman Alvan Adams in scoring. Adams pitched in 36 points as OU made it six straight over Oklahoma State.

The 6-9 freshman is the highest-scoring rookie in Sooner history, his 454 points surpassing the 1966 high of 441 by sophomore Don Sidle.

The Oklahoma press limited the Pokes to two points in the final five minutes. Freshman John Breathwit contributed 10 for the winners, giving him 37 in the last three games for the Sooners, who snapped a string of six straight road losses.

Nebraska halted a four-game skid, its longest since the 1964-65 season, and presented Coach Joe Cipriano his first victory in 10 tries at Lawrence. Freshman Jerry Fort and junior Lee Harris contributed 20 of the Huskers' 32 first-half points and added 10 more in the second half against the cold-shooting Jayhawks. Kansas hit just 36 per cent from the field.

Poor shooting also helped do in the Buffs against Kansas State. Colorado fans had termed their team the "Bullseye Bunch" after a string of 50-and 60-per cent efforts, but CU fell off to 40 per cent against the scrappy Wildcat defense.

This week's schedule::

Tonight—Oklahoma at Missouri; Colorado at Creighton.

Tuesday—Kansas at Kansas State.

Saturday—Missouri at Colorado, afternoon; Oklahoma State at Kansas; Kansas State at Iowa State; Nebraska at Oklahoma.

Cagle leads CHS to Bootheel title

HAYTI— The Hayti fans had a disappointing night as they sat and watched the Indians fall victims to top-seeded Caruthersville in the Bootheel Conference Tourney championship 73-70 Saturday night. The Tigers failed to make a sweep of the tourney when the B-team, also seeded number one, suffered a defeat at the hands of North Pemiscot 54-40.

Joe Calge led the balanced attack on the Indians with 27 markers. Dennis Yarbrough followed with 13 and Robert Marshall and George Cunningham dropped in 12 and 13 respectively.

First quarter playing set the pace for the entire game as each team battled for a small edge to hold onto. Both teams were playing good ball and shots were going in from everywhere. Scoring was at a deadlock at the end of the first frame action, 23- 23. In the second frame, the lead changed hands back and forth but the Tigers were finally able to move out ahead of Hayti and hold a six point halftime lead.

Caruthersville was not to take it easy after intermission. Hayti played stubborn ball and fought back to within a single point of the Tigers in the third frame. Action in the final quarter closely resembled that of the second, with the lead see- sawing back and forth between the two teams, but it was Caruthersville that was able to gain that final edge to capture the first place win.

High man for the Indians was Freddie Booth, hitting for 22 markers. Oscar Cushingberry dumped in 16 points with Isaac Smith adding 15.

The Caruthersville's T-team ran into trouble during the first quarter and could not make a come- back to overcome the Mustangs. North Pemiscot set the pace and marked up 17 points to the Tigers' seven. Caruthersville began making their shots in the second frame but still trailed North Pemiscot at the half, 31- 24.

The Mustangs came back from intermission and was off the target. The Tigers' defense held their shooting down to move within five points of the North Pemiscot team. The Mustangs were not to be held down and in the final quarter of play, they managed to turn the tables on Caruthersville to claim the first place title.

Stewart pumped in 19 points to earn high scoring honors for the Mustangs. Robinson and Norris hit for 15 and 11 markers respectively. For the Tigers, it was Walton connecting for 15 points and Palmer 14.

Scoring:

TRCC Raiders lose

ST. LOUIS— Forest Park community college scored 25 points from the free throw line Saturday night on the way to a 87- 74 victory over Three Rivers CC of Poplar Bluff.

The loss dropped the defending Missouri Junior College Athletic conference champion Raiders into a tie for the lead with Mineral Area. Both sport 7- 2 league marks.

Coach Gene Bess' Raiders fell behind 40- 34 at half and was never able to make any headway against the host, who stayed at the charity line most of the game.

Ron Johnson paced the Raiders offense with 17 points. Lenny McFerren Mark Baker and Steve Beckering scored 15, 12, and 10 points respectively for TRCC.

Dennis Sims padded his lead as the Raiders leading rebounder with 17 grabs.

TRCC out- shot the host from the field, 33- 31, but took a 25- 8 licking at the charity line on the way to their seventh defeat in 25 games this season. Forest Park moved their record to 18- 8.

The Raiders host the Memphis State freshman tonight at the Poplar Bluff high school gym.

Jimmy Robinson (55) goes high into the air to launch a shot over the out-stretched arm of Senath-Hornersville's Ricky Allen (10) during championship action of the Dunklin county tournament at Cardwell Saturday night. The Lions Kent Waggoner (30) seems to be setting down on the job.

Advance B-team wins third in varsity meet

ZALMA — The Zalma Invitational Basketball Tourney was brought to a close Saturday night with Advance's B-team dumping Marquand 84-30 for third place and the championship was won by the top- seeded Naylor Eagles in overtime, 79-77 over Greenville.

The hot shooting trio of Ron Oller, Joe Cummins, and Dave Tropf did it again Saturday night, as they bombed the nets to carry the Hornets to a roaring upset over a varsity squad. Oller was high man with 21 points with Cummins and Tropf added 20 apiece.

The Hornets were all over the court shooting, rebounding, and guarding, Advance came out hot in the first quarter and couldn't miss. Marquand, on the other hand, couldn't find the basket and was able to hit for a mere five points. The Hornets kept the pace going in the second quarter and were running over the Tigers. Marquand failed to pull themselves together and at half, they trailed 48-13.

The last half was a replay of the first. The Tigers could not penetrate the Hornets' defense but were able to contain the Advance team to 13 points in the third frame. In the final quarter, the Hornets ripped the nets for 23 markers to capture a big win.

The two Cox boys for Marquand shared scoring honors with 10 points each.

The championship game was an exciting way to end tourney action. The two top-seeded teams made an all-out effort to battle their way to first place and when the final buzzer sounded, the Naylor Eagles came out on top.

Naylor ran into cold shooting in the first frame and Greenville took advantage, moving out to a 20-8 lead. The Bears maintained the pace they set in the first quarter, and even though the Eagles found the mark, it was not enough to pull within the Greenville team. At half, the Bears held a 15 point lead over Naylor.

Coming back from intermission, Greenville played a consistent game, withholding Naylor from gaining on them. Naylor rallied during the final frame to come up with 26 points and managed to stop Greenville's shooting attack to tie the game up at 69-all. The overtime period was evely matched but the Eagles were able to dump in an extra basket on the Bears to take the championship win.

Garry Purdom was high scorer of the night hitting for 24 markers. Mike Yound dumped in 17 points with Kenny Maples and Doug Johnson contributing 13 and 12 respectively.

Five Greenville players hit in double figures despite the loss. Ken Shell led the scoring for the Bears with 20 points, with Dan McCrum following close behind with 19. Bill McClean dumped in 14, Doug Stroup 12 and Ron Montgomery added 10.
